STATE OBLIGATION ON ENFORCEMENT IS FORCING NEW ISSUE

Wickersham Letter May Have Effect On Election

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The letter of George W. Wickersham appeared today to have shifted the prohibition issue toward new ground and to have unloosed political currents which may have pronounced effects in the next presidential campaign in 1932.

The letter, which the chairman of President Hoovers' law enforcement commission sent to the conference of governors this week, has provoked an issue as to whether the states are morally obligated to help enforce federal prohibition.

Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland has taken the negative side of this issue so aggressively that he is regarded by some as a possible successor to Alfred E. Smith as spokesman of the wet faction of the Democratic party, especially if next year he is re-elected governor of Maryland for the fourth time.

However, there may be some competition for this role from Governor Roosevelt of New York, but he is approaching the prohibition question warily and at the moment appears to attach more importance to the merger issue which he recently warned was becoming a national danger. Should Roosevelt fail of re-election next year, the way would be fairly clear for Ritchie who has always been friendly with the Smith group.

The Wickersham letter has not helped the Democratic party as a whole, however, for it instantly revived the old cleavage. Both factions are criticizing Wickersham's proposal but for different reasons—drys like Senator Caraway of Arkansas are condemning it because they regard it as too wet, and wets like Ritchie condemn it because they think it too dry.

There is no sign of the Democratic party coming toward an internal agreement on the prohibition issue. National Chairman Raskob in his rehabilitation work in the last few months has made silence regarding prohibition a cardinal point in his strategy. But the Wickersham letter has dragged the issue out again.

On the Republican side the Wickersham letter has aroused much controversy as to whether President Hoover is in sympathy with the proposed division of enforcement work and whether as a flexible scheme which would permit prohibition to adapt itself to local sentiment in different states.

In his inaugural address President Hoover said: "Of the undoubted abuses which have grown up under the eighteenth amendment part are due to the failure of some states to accept their share of responsibility for concurrent enforcement and to the failure of many state and local officials to accept the obligation under their oath of office zealously to enforce the laws."

That is as much as is known about Mr. Hoover's views on enforcement weaknesses. His law enforcement commission is not expected to complete its work for two years. If prohibition recommendations are delayed until then they would be offered to the country just ahead of the 1932 presidential campaign. It would be logical for Mr. Hoover to support those recommendations.

While many wets continue to advocate repeal of the eighteenth amendment, there is less and less conviction among them that this can be brought about, at least within this generation. They are tending now to cast about for some legal formula which will permit individual thirst to be quenched without jeopardy.

OHIO RIVER FERRY DESTROYED BY FIRE

NEW RICHMOND, O., July 19.—The ferry boat Louis Adams, plying between here and South New Richmond, Ky., was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin today.

The blaze broke out about 6:30 a. m. The New Richmond fire department was summoned but the fire had gained such headway the firemen were unable to control it.

Richard Young, engineer of the boat, and Bruce Scott, pilot, were eating breakfast in town when the fire started.

The boat burned to the water's edge.

BLAST CLAIMS SEVEN LIVES

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., July 19.—The death toll in last night's explosion at the Logans Ferry plant of the United States Aluminum Company mounted to seven today with the death of four more victims.

Two men were found dead in the debris of the plant, which is a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America. Another died a short time later at a hospital and the other four died during the night and morning.

REMOVE NINE BODIES FROM WRECKAGE OF TRAIN IN COLORADO

Believe Death List Will Total 11; Creek Now Dry

STRATTON, Colo., July 19.—Sand Creek today is once more a "dry wash," a sun-baked avenue for a cloudburst's fury, which yesterday reached out to imperil 400 vacation-bound passengers on the Rock Island and Pacific's crack Colorado express.

Today nine bodies had been recovered from the grotesque wreckage of a twelve-car train which left the rails when the seventy-foot bridge across Sand Creek collapsed under the pressure of a torrent of water, but Coroner O. Kinney said he had the names of eleven victims of one of the most tragic of Colorado's rail accidents.

The wreck occurred at 4 a. m. when the passengers were asleep. One Pullman coach turned sidewise on the bridge, when the rail spread and dropped into the raging torrent below, disappearing from sight. But one occupant of the car, E. J. Perry of New Bedford, Mass., who was awake, escaped. He fought his way through a window caught a passing timber and gained the shore.

The next car nose-dived into the stream. Heroic work on the part of several passengers in the coach prevented additional loss of life as the sleeping tourists were hurled forward by the force of the impact. Men, women and children, stunned and drowning, were dragged out through windows to safety.

Coroner Kinney said he believes the following persons lost their lives:

Ben Lewis, Memphis, Tenn.
Mrs. Ben Lewis, Memphis, Tenn.
Harry Lewis, 11, Memphis, Tenn.
Miss Mary McDonald, Florida.
Mrs. Jennie Foltz, Memphis, Tenn.
G. S. Carlie, New York City.
Miss Julia Carlie, New York City.
T. B. Johnson, Birmingham, Ala.
Brooks Cline, Negro porter.
Unitentified Negro porter.

Search of the wreckage was being continued today. The submerged Pullman coach was half full of sand, rocks and debris and progress was slow.

Morris Gest, famous New York theatrical producer, was a passenger on the train and was one of the first to report the disaster and narrate the details. He was not injured.

W. R. Zimmerman of Eagle, Neb., a banker, was motoring along the road that parallels the railroad track at the moment of the crash. He removed his clothing, dived into the turbulent stream, and with others, broke Pullman windows and helped release drowning passengers.

TIME TO QUIT

CHICAGO, July 19.—And then he gave up golf.

Two months ago Capt. Charles Paasch of the Evanston police department played his first game of golf. Yesterday he shot a hole in one.

"I'm through," he said today. "No use trying to better perfection."

"HEAD MAN" DREAMS OF IDEAL KINGDOM ON PACIFIC ISLAND

Clevelander Plans To Make Dream Come True

CLEVELAND, O., July 19.—One day last summer a big paving man from Cleveland, spending a vacation in California, had a dream.

The man dreamed of a beautiful little island out in the Pacific Ocean past the three-mile limit—an island that civilization had not bothered about.

M. F. Bramley, head of the Cleveland Trinidad Paving Company was the man and being a yachtsman in spare moments, he worried because he had no boat. So he chartered an airplane and scanned the peaceful waters from the clouds and spotted the island of his dreams!

Bramley just arrived home the other day from a five-months exploration trip to the dream island. It is a sunken reef known as Cortez Shoals, he reports, and is part of the sunken continent of Mu. He took the trip in his own cruiser with his own crew.

Today Bramley's friends told that the big paving man had been turning over beautiful dreams in his head and that he is actually going to do something about their realization. They told that Bramley had spoken words about setting up an ideal commonwealth, a separate little kingdom—away from it all——with Bramley as king, ruler, president, mayor, chief or sultan.

This much is certain—Bramley is already the head man of Cortez Shoals. It is out on the high seas. He claims he dreamed it was there, and he took a plane out and found it. He is the head man.

At other times Bramley has mentioned wouldn't it be nice to build a hotel on the island, put in the classiest swimming pools and other resort appurtenances and go out and spend vacations and have fun there.

The paving man is known hereabouts as a shrewd business man and his friends do not hesitate to say Bramley seriously intends to make something quite grand out of his little "kingdom."

"I wouldn't want to set up opposition to the United States," Bramley explained. "Besides, it may cost too much money to raise the island. But we'll see.

"I'll decide before September what I intend to do with my island."

SATURDAY LAST DAY FOR TAX PAYMENT

Saturday is the final day for the payment of the June installment of taxes without delinquency, Miss Helen Dodds, county treasurer, reminded taxpayers Friday.

With the deadline date nearing, the usual last-minute rush to pay taxes was in full swing Friday.

The treasurer's office will remain open Saturday afternoon for the accommodation of late taxpayers but all taxes not paid on or before Saturday will be placed on the delinquent list.

WOOL IN STORAGE

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Three million pounds of wool are in storage in warehouses of the Ohio Wool Producers' Co-operative Association, it was announced today. This represents a half million pounds more than was in storage at this time last year. The wool is being held for a more active market and a greater price than prevails.

HEAVY STORM DAMAGE

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 19.—Considerabl damage was done in this area late yesterday by a severe wind and rain storm. The county's corn crop was reported seriously damaged.

CHEMICAL WARFARE EXHIBITED AT CAMP BY OHIO GUARDSMEN

Thousands Watch Scientific Sham Battle At Perry

CAMP PERRY, O., July 19.—Troops of the seventy-third infantry brigade, together with members of the 112th medical regiment, were preparing to break camp today after the largest demonstration of chemical warfare ever held here.

Thousands of visitors jammed the camp grounds last night to witness the use of chemical offensive devices in a sham-battle. Smoke screens, tear gas barrages, machine gun tracer bullets, hand grenades, bombs, parachute cartridges and rockets were used in a colorful demonstration of what war actually can be like.

The program opened with airplane maneuvers and the spraying of enemy boats by machine gun fire.

Col. E. K. Stirling, of the general staff of the fifth corps area, arrived yesterday to review the seventy-third infantry brigade and the 112th medical regiment this afternoon.

Advance details of officers and men of the seventy-fourth infantry brigade and the 112th engineers arrived today to prepare for the arrival of the main body of these troops which will enter a two-weeks' training period Sunday.

FIND KILLER INSANE

DAYTON, O., July 19.—James Holton who shot and killed his eight year-old son several weeks ago, was held insane and probably will be committed to the state hospital at Lima.

Situation Tense

L. M. Marakhan, Vice-Commissar for foreign affairs at Moscow, Russia, and former Ambassador to China, wrote the note demanding China apologize or suffer the consequences for her act of seizing the Chinese Eastern Railway and arresting Soviet officials.

SANITY HEARING ON SNOOK WILL START DEFENSE OF SLAYER

Hearing Will Decide Whether Slayer To Stand Trial

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Dr. James H. Snook who confessed he killed Theora Hix, 25-year-old Ohio State University medical co-ed, will begin a fight for his life here Monday.

The initial stage of the battle will be a sanity hearing which is expected to determine whether the bespectacled Snook will be adjudged insane—and committed to an asylum—or whether he must stand trial on a first degree murder charge.

If he is found sane, and goes to trial, the state will demand the death penalty.

Chief witnesses at the hearing will be three "disinterested alienists"—all superintendents of state asylums — who were appointed by Common Pleas Judge Henry Scarlett to examine the former professor and submit their findings.

On the basis of their testimony, a sanity jury will determine Snook's fate.

The alienists, Dr. W. H. Vorbau of Lima; Dr. Arthur G. Hyde, Massillon, and Dr. Guy H. Williams, Cleveland, examined Snook for seventy minutes yesterday.

Sitting with them were three state and two defense alienists who contributed comment and also asked questions.

The findings will be submitted to Judge Scarlett tomorrow. The sanity hearing begins on the day Snook was to have gone on trial for first degree murder, it is expected to last a week.

Miss Hix, with whom Snook occupied a love nest, was slain June 13.

CONFESS BEATING WOMAN TO DEATH

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 19.—Fearing the "evil influence" of Mrs. Loretta Fairchild, 75-year-old minister's widow, Eugene Burgess, 53, and his wife, Pearl, today confessed they beat the aged woman to death with a lead pipe and hammer while she sat at the table as their dinner guest last night.

The confession was made shortly after police discovered Mrs. Fairchild's battered and weighted body in a cistern in the rear of the Burgess home.

The couple declared that Mrs. Fairchild claimed she had killed more than 100 persons a year for twenty-five years through a strange will power.

INHABITANTS FLEE FROM EARTHQUAKE

FLORENCE, ITALY, July 19.—An earthquake shock lasting eight seconds was felt here and in the surrounding country today, causing widespread alarm and the abandonment of many houses by inhabitants who fled in terror to the open fields.

There were no casualties or serious damages reported. Several buildings cracked in the towns of Borgo, San Lorenzo, Barberino and Vicchio.

ACCUSE EX-CONVICT

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Mack McGinnes, 45, former state penitentiary convict, was under arrest on a statutory charge today in connection with an attack on a 9-year-old boy here. Police say McGinnes served a term for forgery.

STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO MAKE AIR GOOD WILL TOUR

Caravan Of Planes Will Cover Ohio In Five Days

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—"The Ohio Chamber of Commerce good will air tour", a caravan of about thirty planes to visit all airports in the state, was announced today by officials of the state organization.

The flight, of four or five days duration, will begin at Port Columbus and end at Municipal Airport, Cleveland, August 23. The arrival of the good-will fleet will feature the opening of the national air races at the latter field.

Planes will be entered in the flight by chambers of commerce in various cities and by airplane manufacturers.

Lloyd D. Bower, executive secretary of the commercial aeronautics committee of the state chamber, announced that ships already have been entered by Columbus, Dayton, Cleveland, Toledo, Akron, Greenville, and Portsmouth. Many other cities are expected to follow.

"Our plans have the unqualified endorsement of State Aeronautics Director John N. Vorys," Bower said. "The director is working with us to complete arrangements, and will be one of the officials to travel on the tour."

Governor Cooper and other state officials will be invited to make the flight and address meetings in the cities en route.

A tentative itinerary for the good will tour includes:

Leaving Port Columbus, flying over Norton Feld to Springfield for a short stop then to Troy where the passengers will inspect the airplane factory. From Troy to Dayton municipal airport at Vandalia, and Wright Field, Fairfield. The first day's flight ends at Dayton.

For the second day's flight the planes will pass over two commercial fields out of Dayton, and make stops at Middletown, Hamilton, and Watson and Lunken airports, Cincinnati.

The third day the tour includes stops at Raven Rock Field, Portsmouth, Gallipolis, Marietta, and Wheeling. At the latter city an inspection will be made of the plane construction plant.

Other stops are scheduled for East Liverpool, Canton, Massillon, Alliance, visiting another factory, and Youngstown. The flight continues to Warren, Fulton Field, Akron; Mansfield, Marion, Lima, Van Wert, and Defiance where the tourists will see another plane factory.

Leaving Defiance stops are planned for Findlay, Fostoria, Fremont, Toledo, Sandusky, Lorain, and Cleveland.

"It is our intention to visit as many airports as have adequate fields for landing all types of ships," Bower explained.

Although not included in the present routing, stops may be made in the following cities: Chillicothe, Zanesville, Newark, Cambridge, Coshocton, and New Philadelphia.

"The purpose of the tour will be to demonstrate the reliability of modern aviation" chamber of commerce officials explained. "With this end in view, no stunting will be permitted at the various stops until all passenger planes are on the ground."

An effort is being made to include as many Ohio-made planes in the flight as possible. No prizes will be offered for any feature of the trip, officials insist.

Local chambers of commerce at the stopping points of the itinerary are planning luncheons and banquets for the visiting passengers. At these meetings speakers will stress the importance of well-maintained airports and city marking, and explain Ohio's new aeronautics law.

Arthur E. Morgan of Yellow Springs, is a member of the chamber of commerce aeronautics committee.

POSTMEN ELECT

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Officers elected at the closing session of the tri-state Postmasters Association convention here, were as follows: W. T. Huntsman, Toledo, president; Joseph Jameson, Lorain, vice president; Alfred V. Reschar, Anderson, Ind., secretary-treasurer; Harvey E. Hawley, Mansfield, state chairman for Ohio; W. O. Morgan, Stanford, Ky., for Kentucky, and Thomas J. Jackson, New Albany, Ind., for Indiana. Fort Wayne won the 1930 session.

REPORT SCREEN ACTRESS TO MARRY

Virginia Lee Corbin, 17-year-old screen actress, mysteriously missing from her home in California since Sunday, is believed to be on her way to New York. She disappeared after being admonished by her guardian for staying out late Saturday night. It is reported she will be married in New York.

BANKERS AND FARMERS TO TOUR WESTERN OHIO EARLY IN AUGUST

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Believing the present agricultural situation can be relieved to some extent by better understanding between bankers and farmers, a party of representatives of the Ohio Bankers Association and leading agriculturists will travel through western Ohio early in August on the fourth annual agricultural inspection tour of the association.

The party will spend three days—August 13, 14 and 15—traveling through six counties in a large motor bus. The counties to be visited are Union, Logan, Miami, Darke, Preble and Montgomery.

In each county the visiting party will be met by a group of local bankers and farmers. All will then proceed through the county stopping at several typically successful farms which have been selected with the aid of county agricultural agents. At each of the farms to be visited, the farmer will take the visitors to view the project which he is carrying on and then will tell them what methods he used to make it profitable. The farms which are to be visited will not be of the "show place" type, but good ordinary tracts upon which the owner or operator has attained success through the use of modern methods.

In each county visited, a public meeting will be held. At these meetings, officers of the bankers association and agricultural experts who are members of the party will discuss agriculture and banking and the close relation which the two have to each other.

RODNEY FORD LOSES HOPE FOR CLEMENCY AS APPEAL DENIED

Alleged Slayer Of Marshal Goes To Electric Chair

OHIO STATE PENITENTIARY, COLUMBUS, July 19.— Rodney Ford of Cincinnati, paced his box-like cell in death row today as the last hours of his life were tolled off.

Tonight—as the sun sinks in the west—he will be electrocuted in expiation of the murder of Peter Dumele, marshal of North College Hill, Cincinnati.

"I am innocent," Ford reiterated today as he was notified that executive clemency, his last ray of hope, had been denied. "I'll die an innocent man."

Dumele was slain fifteen months ago—on Easter Sunday—during a holdup of the Pelican Club.

Pandemonium broke loose, guns barked and when the smoke cleared away, Dumele lay on the floor, mortally wounded.

Of three men arrested and convicted, Ford, the alleged ringleader, was the only one sentenced to death. The others, Breck Lutes, 28, of Middletown, and John Messner, of Hamilton, were sentenced to life.

Ford won two stays but his request for a third—a commutation—was denied by Governor Cooper yesterday.

DETROIT POLICE GUARD PLANT FROM STRIKERS; QUELL RIOT

DETROIT, July 18.—More than 100 patrolmen today guarded the plant of the Murray Corporation of America, automobile body finishers, against attack by striking finishers and their sympathizers.

Three hundred police quelled a near riot late yesterday when a crowd of 2,000 resented an attempt to disperse picketers. Several persons including two company officials, were injured slightly.

More than 1,000 men walked out when wages for work done on a piece basis were reduced in various instances.

The strikers' demands for $1 an hour and an eight-hour day are to be presented formally to the corporation after a mass meeting today.

In the event their petition is rejected, the strikers say they will ask the rest of the 14,000 workers in the plant to join them.

WOMEN ARE WORST SCOFFLAWS

TEXARKANA, Ark., July 19.—Seventy per cent of Arkansas' bootlegging is done by women, Deputy Prohibition Administrator S. M. Gurley charges.

"Our war against these feminine violators of the Volstead act has just started," he declared as fourteen alleged "bootleggerettes" were arraigned in federal court here.

"The days of southern chivalry are over so far as women who break the law are concerned. Before we get through, hundreds of women will be facing a federal judge."

REPORT 31 DIE IN SHIP WRECK

BERLIN, July 19.—Fourteen passengers and seventeen members of the crew of an unidentified Russian steamer were killed or drowned when their ship sank after striking a mine in the Black Sea, according to a report which reached here today.

FISHERMAN DROWNS

CINCINNATI, O., July 19.—Sidney D. Spence, 51, of Branch Hill, former guard at the Federal Reserve Bank, was drowned last night while fishing in the Little Miami River.

SNATCHES PURSE

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Police today were seeking a thief who grabbed a purse containing $25, from Mrs. Netti Neal of Catlettsburg, Ky., last night. The purse snatcher was pursued for several blocks but he evaded capture.

INVASION OF CHINA IS NOT CONSIDERED SOVIET ANNOUNCES

Massing Troops To Prevent Attack By White Guard

MOSCOW, July 19.—Soviet Russia has no intention of invading China to seek reprisal for seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railroad, but, according to the statement of a high official today, is massing troops at the frontier purely to protect its borders against the invasion of White Guard (Czarist) troops.

In a general interview with American correspondents here today Jan Rudzutak, commissar of railroads and transportation in the Soviet union, and a member of the all-powerful political bureau of the communist party, asserted this policy.

"We will not send even one soldier onto Chinese territory," he said, "of course we will protect our borders in view of our information that white guardists are forming military groups for the invasion of our soil. But unless China attacks, we do not intend any military action."

Rudsutak said that this decision was not easily reached because the Soviet masses were indignant and clamored for action. Nevertheless the government desired to demonstrate that its peace pronouncements and adherence to the Kellogg anti-war pact were not merely gestures.

The break of all diplomatic and commercial contacts, he said, was inevitable.

"The various Chinese governments were unable or unwilling to guarantee proper protection of our rights and of our citizens," he said. "It would have been necessary to send in troops to protect them ourselves. This we were unwilling to do."

The third communist internationale in an appeal to the workers of the world to support the Soviet union in its present crisis with China, issued a warning today against the pacifist gestures of the Labor and Social-Democratic governments, at the same time assuring them that Russia was ready to answer armed attacks "blow for blow."

The communist appeal accused General Chiang Kai-Shek, nominal head of the Chinese republic, of being the "hangman of the Chinese workmen and peasants, who executes the instructions of international imperialism and who is provoking the war."

The appeal pointed out that the "impudent" Chinese counter-revolutionists had become particularly arrogant since the Labor government came into power in Great Britain under Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

A speech made by M. I. Kalinin, president of the All-Russian Executive Committee, was published in the newspapers today, assuring the public that Russia was ready to defend the country in the event of an attack and that the Soviet union was able to answer all attacks.

Monster protests were still held throughout the republic yesterday, against the action of the Chinese government in seizing the Chinese eastern railway in Manchuria.

HARBIN, Manchuria, July 19.—Heavy cannonading according to travelers reaching here today, has occurred in the vicinity of Pogranitchaya, on the central eastern border of Manchuria, where the Chinese recently destroyed tunnels of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Other reports followed that Russian warships were approaching Sanfen-Ho, twenty miles south of Pogranitchaya in the sea of Japan and that the Chinese were laying mines in the channel.

PARIS, July 19.—Secret orders have been issued to the Russian white army officers throughout the world, including the many in the United States, to be ready for instantaneous mobilization in view of the present Russo-Chinese situation in Manchuria, the United Press learned here today.

The greatest activity marked the executive staff and the Russian Council today, both of which are in constant telegraphic touch with adherents exiled in Paris are reporting to headquarters in increasing numbers daily, intimating that they are ready to be called upon in case of war.

POLICE FOIL BANK RAID; ARREST THREE

TOLEDO, O., July 19.—Police here today were holding three men who were trapped, according to officers, as they were preparing to rob a Commerce Guardian Trust and Savings Bank Branch. Each was placed under $40,000 bond. Detectives concealed themselves in the neighborhood of the bank after being tipped a raid was planned. A fourth man escaped.

The paving man is known hereabouts as a shrewd business man and his friends do not hesitate to say Bramley seriously intends to make something quite grand out of his little "kingdom."

"I wouldn't want to set up opposition to the United States," Bramley explained. "Besides, it may cost too much money to raise the island. But we'll see.

"I'll decide before September what I intend to do with my island."

SATURDAY LAST DAY FOR TAX PAYMENT

Saturday is the final day for the payment of the June installment of taxes without delinquency, Miss Helen Dodds, county treasurer, reminded taxpayers Friday.

With the deadline date nearing, the usual last-minute rush to pay taxes was in full swing Friday.

The treasurer's office will remain open Saturday afternoon for the accommodation of late taxpayers but all taxes not paid on or before Saturday will be placed on the delinquent list.

WOOL IN STORAGE

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Three million pounds of wool are in storage in warehouses of the Ohio Wool Producers' Co-operative Association, it was announced today. This represents a half million pounds more than was in storage at this time last year. The wool is being held for a more active market and a greater price than prevails.

HEAVY STORM DAMAGE

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 19.—Considerabl damage was done in this area late yesterday by a severe wind and rain storm. The county's corn crop was reported seriously damaged.

Situation Tense

L. M. Marakhan, Vice-Commissar for foreign affairs at Moscow, Russia, and former Ambassador to China, wrote the note demanding China apologize or suffer the consequences for her act of seizing the Chinese Eastern Railway and arresting Soviet officials.

SANITY HEARING ON SNOOK WILL START DEFENSE OF SLAYER

Hearing Will Decide Whether Slayer To Stand Trial

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Dr. James H. Snook who confessed he killed Theora Hix, 25-year-old Ohio State University medical co-ed, will begin a fight for his life here Monday.

The initial stage of the battle will be a sanity hearing which is expected to determine whether the bespectacled Snook will be adjudged insane—and committed to an asylum—or whether he must stand trial on a first degree murder charge.

If he is found sane, and goes to trial, the state will demand the death penalty.

Chief witnesses at the hearing will be three "disinterested alienists"—all superintendents of state asylums — who were appointed by Common Pleas Judge Henry Scarlett to examine the former professor and submit their findings.

On the basis of their testimony, a sanity jury will determine Snook's fate.

The alienists, Dr. W. H. Vorbau of Lima; Dr. Arthur G. Hyde, Massillon, and Dr. Guy H. Williams, Cleveland, examined Snook for seventy minutes yesterday.

Sitting with them were three state and two defense alienists who contributed comment and also asked questions.

The findings will be submitted to Judge Scarlett tomorrow. The sanity hearing begins on the day Snook was to have gone on trial for first degree murder, it is expected to last a week.

Miss Hix, with whom Snook occupied a love nest, was slain June 13.

CHEMICAL WARFARE EXHIBITED AT CAMP BY OHIO GUARDSMEN

Thousands Watch Scientific Sham Battle At Perry

CAMP PERRY, O., July 19.—Troops of the seventy-third infantry brigade, together with members of the 112th medical regiment, were preparing to break camp today after the largest demonstration of chemical warfare ever held here.

Thousands of visitors jammed the camp grounds last night to witness the use of chemical offensive devices in a sham-battle. Smoke screens, tear gas barrages, machine gun tracer bullets, hand grenades, bombs, parachute cartridges and rockets were used in a colorful demonstration of what war actually can be like.

The program opened with airplane maneuvers and the spraying of enemy boats by machine gun fire.

Col. E. K. Stirling, of the general staff of the fifth corps area, arrived yesterday to review the seventy-third infantry brigade and the 112th medical regiment this afternoon.

Advance details of officers and men of the seventy-fourth infantry brigade and the 112th engineers arrived today to prepare for the arrival of the main body of these troops which will enter a two-weeks' training period Sunday.

FIND KILLER INSANE

DAYTON, O., July 19.—James Holton who shot and killed his eight year-old son several weeks ago, was held insane and probably will be committed to the state hospital at Lima.

CONFESS BEATING WOMAN TO DEATH

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 19.—Fearing the "evil influence" of Mrs. Loretta Fairchild, 75-year-old minister's widow, Eugene Burgess, 53, and his wife, Pearl, today confessed they beat the aged woman to death with a lead pipe and hammer while she sat at the table as their dinner guest last night.

The confession was made shortly after police discovered Mrs. Fairchild's battered and weighted body in a cistern in the rear of the Burgess home.

The couple declared that Mrs. Fairchild claimed she had killed more than 100 persons a year for twenty-five years through a strange will power.

INHABITANTS FLEE FROM EARTHQUAKE

FLORENCE, ITALY, July 19.—An earthquake shock lasting eight seconds was felt here and in the surrounding country today, causing widespread alarm and the abandonment of many houses by inhabitants who fled in terror to the open fields.

There were no casualties or serious damages reported. Several buildings cracked in the towns of Borgo, San Lorenzo, Barberino and Vicchio.

ACCUSE EX-CONVICT

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Mack McGinnes, 45, former state penitentiary convict, was under arrest on a statutory charge today in connection with an attack on a 9-year-old boy here. Police say McGinnes served a term for forgery.

STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO MAKE AIR GOOD WILL TOUR

Caravan Of Planes Will Cover Ohio In Five Days

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—"The Ohio Chamber of Commerce good will air tour", a caravan of about thirty planes to visit all airports in the state, was announced today by officials of the state organization.

The flight, of four or five days duration, will begin at Port Columbus and end at Municipal Airport, Cleveland, August 23. The arrival of the good-will fleet will feature the opening of the national air races at the latter field.

Planes will be entered in the flight by chambers of commerce in various cities and by airplane manufacturers.

Lloyd D. Bower, executive secretary of the commercial aeronautics committee of the state chamber, announced that ships already have been entered by Columbus, Dayton, Cleveland, Toledo, Akron, Greenville, and Portsmouth. Many other cities are expected to follow.

"Our plans have the unqualified endorsement of State Aeronautics Director John N. Vorys," Bower said. "The director is working with us to complete arrangements, and will be one of the officials to travel on the tour."

Governor Cooper and other state officials will be invited to make the flight and address meetings in the cities en route.

A tentative itinerary for the good will tour includes:

Leaving Port Columbus, flying over Norton Feld to Springfield for a short stop then to Troy where the passengers will inspect the airplane factory. From Troy to Dayton municipal airport at Vandalia, and Wright Field, Fairfield. The first day's flight ends at Dayton.

For the second day's flight the planes will pass over two commercial fields out of Dayton, and make stops at Middletown, Hamilton, and Watson and Lunken airports, Cincinnati.

The third day the tour includes stops at Raven Rock Field, Portsmouth, Gallipolis, Marietta, and Wheeling. At the latter city an inspection will be made of the plane construction plant.

Other stops are scheduled for East Liverpool, Canton, Massillon, Alliance, visiting another factory, and Youngstown. The flight continues to Warren, Fulton Field, Akron; Mansfield, Marion, Lima, Van Wert, and Defiance where the tourists will see another plane factory.

Leaving Defiance stops are planned for Findlay, Fostoria, Fremont, Toledo, Sandusky, Lorain, and Cleveland.

"It is our intention to visit as many airports as have adequate fields for landing all types of ships," Bower explained.

Although not included in the present routing, stops may be made in the following cities: Chillicothe, Zanesville, Newark, Cambridge, Coshocton, and New Philadelphia.

"The purpose of the tour will be to demonstrate the reliability of modern aviation" chamber of commerce officials explained. "With this end in view, no stunting will be permitted at the various stops until all passenger planes are on the ground."

An effort is being made to include as many Ohio-made planes in the flight as possible. No prizes will be offered for any feature of the trip, officials insist.

Local chambers of commerce at the stopping points of the itinerary are planning luncheons and banquets for the visiting passengers. At these meetings speakers will stress the importance of well-maintained airports and city marking, and explain Ohio's new aeronautics law.

Arthur E. Morgan of Yellow Springs, is a member of the chamber of commerce aeronautics committee.

POSTMEN ELECT

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Officers elected at the closing session of the tri-state Postmasters Association convention here, were as follows: W. T. Huntsman, Toledo, president; Joseph Jameson, Lorain, vice president; Alfred V. Reschar, Anderson, Ind., secretary-treasurer; Harvey E. Hawley, Mansfield, state chairman for Ohio; W. O. Morgan, Stanford, Ky., for Kentucky, and Thomas J. Jackson, New Albany, Ind., for Indiana. Fort Wayne won the 1930 session.

REPORT SCREEN ACTRESS TO MARRY

Virginia Lee Corbin, 17-year-old screen actress, mysteriously missing from her home in California since Sunday, is believed to be on her way to New York. She disappeared after being admonished by her guardian for staying out late Saturday night. It is reported she will be married in New York.

BANKERS AND FARMERS TO TOUR WESTERN OHIO EARLY IN AUGUST

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Believing the present agricultural situation can be relieved to some extent by better understanding between bankers and farmers, a party of representatives of the Ohio Bankers Association and leading agriculturists will travel through western Ohio early in August on the fourth annual agricultural inspection tour of the association.

The party will spend three days—August 13, 14 and 15—traveling through six counties in a large motor bus. The counties to be visited are Union, Logan, Miami, Darke, Preble and Montgomery.

In each county the visiting party will be met by a group of local bankers and farmers. All will then proceed through the county stopping at several typically successful farms which have been selected with the aid of county agricultural agents. At each of the farms to be visited, the farmer will take the visitors to view the project which he is carrying on and then will tell them what methods he used to make it profitable. The farms which are to be visited will not be of the "show place" type, but good ordinary tracts upon which the owner or operator has attained success through the use of modern methods.

In each county visited, a public meeting will be held. At these meetings, officers of the bankers association and agricultural experts who are members of the party will discuss agriculture and banking and the close relation which the two have to each other.

RODNEY FORD LOSES HOPE FOR CLEMENCY AS APPEAL DENIED

Alleged Slayer Of Marshal Goes To Electric Chair

OHIO STATE PENITENTIARY, COLUMBUS, July 19.— Rodney Ford of Cincinnati, paced his box-like cell in death row today as the last hours of his life were tolled off.

Tonight—as the sun sinks in the west—he will be electrocuted in expiation of the murder of Peter Dumele, marshal of North College Hill, Cincinnati.

"I am innocent," Ford reiterated today as he was notified that executive clemency, his last ray of hope, had been denied. "I'll die an innocent man."

Dumele was slain fifteen months ago—on Easter Sunday—during a holdup of the Pelican Club.

Pandemonium broke loose, guns barked and when the smoke cleared away, Dumele lay on the floor, mortally wounded.

Of three men arrested and convicted, Ford, the alleged ringleader, was the only one sentenced to death. The others, Breck Lutes, 28, of Middletown, and John Messner, of Hamilton, were sentenced to life.

Ford won two stays but his request for a third—a commutation—was denied by Governor Cooper yesterday.

DETROIT POLICE GUARD PLANT FROM STRIKERS; QUELL RIOT

DETROIT, July 18.—More than 100 patrolmen today guarded the plant of the Murray Corporation of America, automobile body finishers, against attack by striking finishers and their sympathizers.

Three hundred police quelled a near riot late yesterday when a crowd of 2,000 resented an attempt to disperse picketers. Several persons, including two company officials, were injured slightly.

More than 1,000 men walked out when wages for work done on a piece basis were reduced in various instances.

The strikers' demands for $1 an hour and an eight-hour day are to be presented formally to the corporation after a mass meeting today.

In the event their petition is rejected, the strikers say they will ask the rest of the 14,000 workers in the plant to join them.

INVASION OF CHINA IS NOT CONSIDERED SOVIET ANNOUNCES

Massing Troops To Prevent Attack By White Guard

MOSCOW, July 19.—Soviet Russia has no intention of invading China to seek reprisal for seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railroad, but, "according to the statement of a high official today, is massing troops at the frontier purely to protect its borders against the invasion of White Guard (Czarist) troops.

In a general interview with American correspondents here today Jan Rudzutak, commissar of railroads and transportation in the Soviet union, and a member of the all-powerful political bureau of the communist party, asserted this policy.

"We will not send even one soldier onto Chinese territory," he said, "of course we will protect our borders in view of our information that white guardists are forming military groups for the invasion of our soil. But unless China attacks, we do not intend any military action."

Rudsutak said that this decision was not easily reached because the Soviet masses were indignant and clamored for action. Nevertheless the government desired to demonstrate that its peace pronouncements and adherence to the Kellogg anti-war pact were not merely gestures.

The break of all diplomatic and commercial contacts, he said, was inevitable.

"The various Chinese governments were unable or unwilling to guarantee proper protection of our rights and of our citizens," he said. "It would have been necessary to send in troops to protect them ourselves. This we were unwilling to do."

The third communist internationale in an appeal to the workers of the world to support the Soviet union in its present crisis with China, issued a warning today against the pacifist gestures of the Labor and Social-Democratic governments, at the same time assuring them that Russia was ready to answer armed attacks "blow for blow."

The communist appeal accused General Chiang Kai-Shek, nominal head of the Chinese republic, of being the "hangman of the Chinese workmen and peasants, who executes the instructions of international imperialism and who is provoking the war."

The appeal pointed out that the "impudent" Chinese counter-revolutionists had become particularly arrogant since the Labor government came into power in Great Britain under Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

A speech made by M. I. Kalinin, president of the All-Russian Executive Committee, was published in the newspapers today, assuring the public that Russia was ready to defend the country in the event of an attack and that the Soviet union was able to answer all attacks.

Monster protests were still held throughout the republic yesterday, against the action of the Chinese government in seizing the Chinese eastern railway in Manchuria.

HARBIN, Manchuria, July 19.—Heavy cannonading according to travelers reaching here today, has occurred in the vicinity of Pogranitchaya, on the central eastern border of Manchuria, where the Chinese recently destroyed tunnels of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Other reports followed that Russian warships were approaching Sanfen-Ho, twenty miles south of Pogranitchaya in the sea of Japan and that the Chinese were laying mines in the channel.

PARIS, July 19.—Secret orders have been issued to the Russian white army officers throughout the world, including the many in the United States, to be ready for instantaneous mobilization in view of the present Russo-Chinese situation in Manchuria, the United Press learned here today.

The greatest activity marked the executive staff and the Russian Council today, both of which are in constant telegraphic touch with adherents exiled in Paris are reporting to headquarters in increasing numbers daily, intimating that they are ready to be called upon in case of war.

WOMEN ARE WORST SCOFFLAWS

TEXARKANA, Ark., July 19.—Seventy per cent of Arkansas' bootlegging is done by women, Deputy Prohibition Administrator S. M. Gurley charges.

"Our war against these feminine violators of the Volstead act has just started," he declared as fourteen alleged "bootleggerettes" were arraigned in federal court here.

"The days of southern chivalry are over so far as women who break the law are concerned. Before we get through, hundreds of women will be facing a federal judge."

REPORT 31 DIE IN SHIP WRECK

BERLIN, July 19.—Fourteen passengers and seventeen members of the crew of an unidentified Russian steamer were killed or drowned when their ship sank after striking a mine in the Black Sea, according to a report which reached here today.

FISHERMAN DROWNS

CINCINNATI, O., July 19.—Sidney D. Spence, 51, of Branch Hill, former guard at the Federal Reserve Bank, was drowned last night while fishing in the Little Miami River.

SNATCHES PURSE

COLUMBUS, O., July 19.—Police today were seeking a thief who grabbed a purse containing $25, from Mrs. Netti Neal of Catlettsburg, Ky., last night. The purse snatcher was pursued for several blocks but he evaded capture.

POLICE FOIL BANK RAID; ARREST THREE

TOLEDO, O., July 19.—Police here today were holding three men who were trapped, according to officers, as they were preparing to rob a Commerce Guardian Trust and Savings Bank Branch. Each was placed under $40,000 bond. Detectives concealed themselves in the neighborhood of the bank after being tipped a raid was planned. A fourth man escaped.

DOWER INTEREST IS CLAIMED BY SUIT; OTHER COURT NEWS

Seeking an assignment to him of dower interest in certain property, Dennis D. Bryan has brought suit in Common Pleas Court against Irma Watson, Vernice Tyler and Willis Hill.

The plaintiff asserts that in November, 1874 he married Jane McDorman, who died July 21, 1908 having inherited real estate situated in Ross Twp. and one-half interest in a second tract in Clark and Greene Counties, townships of Madison and Ross.

According to the petition, the first tract of more than 118 acres is claimed by the defendant, Irma Watson and the second tract of 149 1-2 acres is claimed by the defendant, Vernice Tyler, as devisees under the will of Pearl Hill, who passed away January 18, 1929. She was a resident of Madison County.

The defendant, Willis Hill, the petition avers, claims a dower interest in the property, being the widower of Pearl Hill and having elected not to take under her will.

The plaintiff claims he is entitled to dower interest in the real estate and asks that it be assigned to him.

W. A. and W. S. Paxson are attorneys for the plaintiff.

HOME PUPILS ENJOY PLEASURES OF CAMP LIFE THIS SUMMER

Seventy-five boys and about sixty-five girls of the O. S. and S. O. Home are now enjoying the summer encampments provided for those pupils who of necessity must remain at the institution during the hot months, being denied vacation trips by relatives or friends.

The boys' camp is located on the E. J. Griffith farm near Clifton, directly opposite Camp Miami, Boy Scout camp on the Bryan state farm at Yellow Springs, and is known as the "Myers Y. Cooper Camp." The fresh air camp at Bellbrook, donated by G. E. Gorman, Dayton realtor, is being utilized as the camp for the girls.

As fast as the Home children return from vacations they are being absorbed at the two camps, where healthful recreational programs are being arranged.

Pupils of the four high school classes at the Home are being recalled from vacations by Superintendent C. V. Burton August 1 in order that they may enjoy the benefits of the two summer camps.

Recall of the absent students will add about 125 boys and 100 girls to the population of the camps, which will last until September 1, when school starts.

KODAK FINISHING BUSINESS STARTED

Miss Daisy Clemans, Home Ave., long experienced in photographic work and picture printing, opened a kodak finishing business Friday in Room 9, second floor of the Steele Bldg., she announced.

The room has been remodelled and equipped for the new business. Miss Clemens will specialize in developing and printing amateur work, and may eventually enlarge the business into a photographic studio. Patrons may bring the films to her office or leave them at Donges drug store, Second and Detroit Sts.

Miss Clemens was connected with the E. F. Canby studio for twenty-seven years.

ALLEGED "EYE SUBSTITUTE" HELD

An alleged attempt to substitute another's eyes for his own and outwit an examining board for the U. S. naval academy at Annapolis, Md., led to the arrest in Washington of Henry Sherwin Rupp, left, of Long Beach, Cal., and Paul David Schooler of Washington, right, with face covered.

COMPANY RECRUITS NEW MEMBERS; MAY ADD TEN GUARDSMEN

With the expectation of increasing its membership before leaving Sunday morning for the annual summer training period of fifteen days at Camp Perry, O., Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, has established a recruiting station in a tent erected on the Court House lawn Friday.

Any persons who care to enlist in the local guard unit for three years may enroll at the recruiting station either Friday or Saturday. New members will also be entitled to go to camp with the company.

The company now has sixty members and is recruited to its minimum strength but there is room for about ten more guardsmen, according to Captain O. H. Cornwell, commanding officer.

Captain Cornwell also advises members of the company that the quarterly payroll, estimated at $800, has arrived and that the checks will be distributed to guardsmen early Sunday morning prior to the departure for Camp Perry.

The company will travel to camp on a special Pennsylvania train, leaving at 7:30 a. m. Sunday.

ILLINOIS WILL BE ARMAGEDDON IN AMERICAN WOMEN'S RIGHTS

By ROY J. GIBBONS
Central Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, July 19.—Illinois is to be the Armageddon of American women in the legal battle to remove the chattel restrictions that still hedge Uncle Sam's 50,000,000 nieces with a thorn-barrier of inequality.

The day when the right citizens of the United States shall be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex is at its sunset. You may take the word of Mrs. C. P. Fowler, chairman of the legal status committee of the Illinois League of Women Voters for that.

New Legal Deal

And with the dawn of another day, there'll be a new legal deal all the way around, and a new deck of privileges under the law!

Women of this state have started off the battle by pushing through the house of representatives a bill permitting women on juries, subject to a referendum in 1930. Heretofore, there has never been a referendum vote on this subject in the United States, those commonwealth allowing women jurors to serve having settled the matter by court decision.

But let Mrs. Fowler have the floor.

"The Nineteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, giving women the franchise, neither directly nor indirectly removed all desirable legal inequalities between men and women," said Mr. Fowler. "In many states, for instance, it does not operate to make women eligible or liable for jury duty.

"Jury service was open to women in three states before 1920. Since that time, by new state statutes or by construction of those already existing, women have been made jurors in eighteen states and the District of Columbia. Of the twenty-one state laws providing for women jurors nine are compulsory; in two states there are special exemptions—for nurses—and in the other ten states and the District of Columbia, service is permissive.

"The Illinois legislature has passed the 'women on juries' bills, and it's up to the women of the state to see that the referendum makes effective their years of work to achieve this success. If Illinois admits women as jurors, it will mean the call to arms of the women of the nation."

But Illinois women aren't out to change their status and that of their sisters in the other forty-seven states of the union in the matter of jury service alone. Their grievances are many, and the remedies they suggest drastic. The fight is on, and their position is to strike hard while the iron is hot.

Mrs. Elrod Speaks

At this juncture, it might be best to recognize Mrs. Rena Elrod, member of the Illinois legislature from the Twenty-fifth district in Chicago, and a leading figure in the League of Women Voters.

"There is still much to be done to remove the barrier of women's inequality in the law," she declared. "Why, in the state of Oklahoma women are still ineligible to hold major state offices, such as governor, lieutenan governor, attorney general, state treasurer and the like. In spite of the herculean efforts of women leaders in the various states, one word still bars women from becoming governor of Wisconsin.

"According to federal law, a woman citizen loses her citizenship by marriage to an alien ineligible to citizenship, while the converse is not true. A man may marry a women ineligible to citizenship without loss of his status as a citizen.

"A woman who marries a naturalized citizen loses her citizenship through continued residence outside of the United States (after two years in a foreign state of which her husband is a subject). A native born male citizen, however, married to an alien woman, does not lose his citizenship through continued residence in a foreign country."

MRS. CLARENCE FOWLER

MRS. RENA ELROD

About laws affecting family relations, Mrs. Elrod has this to say:

"An equal guardianship law has been passed in thirty-eight states, although in one of these it is provided that in case of dispute the father's authority shall prevail. In the rest of the nation the father's guardianship rights are unquestioned.

"One-third of the states in the Union provide that the wife shares equally in the children's earnings with the husband. There are eight community property states in which the husband has control of the community property during his lifetime, but in four of these states the wife must join in a conveyance of real estate. In these states, husband and wife have no interest whatever in each other's separate estate. Of the remaining forty states, the laws of twenty-five provide for an equal interest by married persons in each other's real estate. In four states a maried woman has an interest in her husband's real estate, where no reciprocal right is granted to the husband."

The Family Income

And recognizing Mrs. C. P. Fowler once more.

"No state by law accords to wives any portion of the family income, except such as they may have earned outside the home, and in six states the husband also takes her wages.

"In no state may a wife collect for services performed in the home, and there is no state in which the wife is entitled to a voice in the choice of a family home, or in which there is a joint headship in husband and wife."

The battle to change all this is looked for in Illinois. In fact, the skirmishing has already begun. The real fireworks are to get under way in the immediate future. And it will be tooth and nail for legal justice.

Re-recognizing both Mrs. Fowler and Mrs. Elrod.

"And equality!"

Poems that Live

THE TURN OF THE ROAD

SOFT, gray buds on the willow,
Warm, moist winds from the bay,
Sea-gulls out on the sandy beach,
And a road my eager feet would reach,
The leads to the Far-away.

Dust on the wayside flower,
The meadow-lark's luring tone
Is silent now, from the grasses tipped
With dew at the dawn, the pearls have slipped—
Far have I fared alone.

And then by the alder thicket
The turn of the road—and you!
Though the earth lie white in the noonday heat,
Or the swift storm follow our hurrying feet
What do we care—we two!

Editor of Xenia Gazette:

GAME COCKS

I read that our county authorities are puzzled to know how to dispose of the five game cocks valued at $100 each by owners which were confiscated by Sheriff Tate last Sunday in Beavercreek Twp. Why not deal with this as other confiscated property. A man may own a cur which he, only, values very highly, pay taxes accordingly or at least dog license tax. This dog gets into the neighbor's flock of sheep. What happens? The dog is shot on the neighbor's land and this farmer is protected by the law in doing so. When a large still is confiscated by officers, what happens? Is it again set up in the sheriff's back yard and officials claim they do not know what disposition to make, simply because it has a few hundred dollars value, as does the game roosters both of which are of no value whatsoever, except to those who use them in violation of the law. To my knowledge these are or supposed to be completely destrooyed that they cannot be used again for violation purposes.

Perhaps these roosters have seen too many summers to make good broilers, but would make excellent pressed chicken sandwiches. Why not slaughter those birds and sell them for their real value, which is about 25 cents per pound dressed, and deal with these non-law abiding men as you would with the liquor violators.

Respectfully,
Law abiding citizen.

Heretofore, there has never been a referendum vote on this subject in the United States, those commonwealth allowing women jurors to serve having settled the matter by court decision.

But let Mrs. Fowler have the floor.

"The Nineteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, giving women the franchise, neither directly nor indirectly removed all desirable legal inequalities between men and women," said Mr. Fowler. "In many states, for instance, it does not operate to make women eligible or liable for jury duty.

"Jury service was open to women in three states before 1920. Since that time, by new state statutes or by construction of those already existing, women have been made jurors in eighteen states and the District of Columbia. Of the twenty-one state laws providing for women jurors nine are compulsory; in two states there are special exemptions—for nurses—and in the other ten states and the District of Columbia, service is permissive.

"The Illinois legislature has passed the 'women on juries' bills, and it's up to the women of the state to see that the referendum makes effective their years of work to achieve this success. If Illinois admits women as jurors, it will mean the call to arms of the women of the nation."

But Illinois women aren't out to change their status and that of their sisters in the other forty-seven states of the union in the matter of jury service alone. Their grievances are many, and the remedies they suggest drastic. The fight is on, and their position is to strike hard while the iron is hot.

Mrs. Elrod Speaks

At this juncture, it might be best to recognize Mrs. Rena Elrod, member of the Illinois legislature from the Twenty-fifth district in Chicago, and a leading figure in the League of Women Voters.

"There is still much to be done to remove the barrier of women's inequality in the law," she declared. "Why, in the state of Oklahoma women are still ineligible to hold major state offices, such as governor, lieutenan governor, attorney general, state treasurer and the like. In spite of the herculean efforts of women leaders in the various states, one word still bars women from becoming governor of Wisconsin.

"According to federal law, a woman citizen loses her citizenship by marriage to an alien ineligible to citizenship, while the converse is not true. A man may marry a women ineligible to citizenship without loss of his status as a citizen.

"A woman who marries a naturalized citizen loses her citizenship through continued residence outside of the United States (after two years in a foreign state of which her husband is a subject). A native born male citizen, however, married to an alien woman, does not lose his citizenship through continued residence in a foreign country."

MRS. CLARENCE FOWLER

MRS. RENA ELROD

About laws affecting family relations, Mrs. Elrod has this to say:

"An equal guardianship law has been passed in thirty-eight states, although in one of these it is provided that in case of dispute the father's authority shall prevail. In the rest of the nation the father's guardianship rights are unquestioned.

"One-third of the states in the Union provide that the wife shares equally in the children's earnings with the husband. There are eight community property states in which the husband has control of the community property during his lifetime, but in four of these states the wife must join in a conveyance of real estate. In these states, husband and wife have no interest whatever in each other's separate estate. Of the remaining forty states, the laws of twenty-five provide for an equal interest by married persons in each other's real estate. In four states a maried woman has an interest in her husband's real estate, where no reciprocal right is granted to the husband."

The Family Income

And recognizing Mrs. C. P. Fowler once more.

"No state by law accords to wives any portion of the family income, except such as they may have earned outside the home, and in six states the husband also takes her wages.

"In no state may a wife collect for services performed in the home, and there is no state in which the wife is entitled to a voice in the choice of a family home, or in which there is a joint headship in husband and wife."

The battle to change all this is looked for in Illinois. In fact, the skirmishing has already begun. The real fireworks are to get under way in the immediate future. And it will be tooth and nail for legal justice.

Re-recognizing both Mrs. Fowler and Mrs. Elrod.

"And equality!"

Poems that Live

THE TURN OF THE ROAD

SOFT, gray buds on the willow,
Warm, moist winds from the bay,
Sea-gulls out on the sandy beach,
And a road my eager feet would reach,
The leads to the Far-away.

Dust on the wayside flower,
The meadow-lark's luring tone
Is silent now, from the grasses tipped
With dew at the dawn, the pearls have slipped—
Far have I fared alone.

And then by the alder thicket
The turn of the road—and you!
Though the earth lie white in the noonday heat,
Or the swift storm follow our hurrying feet
What do we care—we two!

Editor of Xenia Gazette:

GAME COCKS

I read that our county authorities are puzzled to know how to dispose of the five game cocks valued at $100 each by owners which were confiscated by Sheriff Tate last Sunday in Beavercreek Twp. Why not deal with this as other confiscated property. A man may own a cur which he, only, values very highly, pay taxes accordingly or at least dog license tax. This dog gets into the neighbor's flock of sheep. What happens? The dog is shot on the neighbor's land and this farmer is protected by the law in doing so. When a large still is confiscated by officers, what happens? Is it again set up in the sheriff's back yard and officials claim they do not know what disposition to make, simply because it has a few hundred dollars value, as does the game roosters both of which are of no value whatsoever, except to those who use them in violation of the law. To my knowledge these are or supposed to be completely destrooyed that they cannot be used again for violation purposes.

Perhaps these roosters have seen too many summers to make good broilers, but would make excellent pressed chicken sandwiches. Why not slaughter those birds and sell them for their real value, which is about 25 cents per pound dressed, and deal with these non-law abiding men as you would with the liquor violators.

Respectfully,
Law abiding citizen.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom and the knowledge of the holy is understanding. For by me thy days shall be multiplied, and the years of thy life shall be increased.—Proverbs, ix, 10, 11.

STOPPING THE WASTE OF LIVES

The interesting theory that suicidal tendencies are curable has been advanced by two members of the neuro-psychiatric division of the department of health of Detroit. The true suicide is born, as poets and artists are, according to Drs. Heldt and Moloney; but he does not always die by his own hand. Absence of the complementary environmental factor apparently sterilizes an inherited suicidal propensity. When the two meet, a true suicide suicides.

The claim of competent medical men to be able to prevent the fatal conjunction of the hereditary and environmental factors in suicide should be easy to admit in a large percentage of cases. Curing suicidal tendencies would not seem to be more difficult than curing some of the mental ailments that the doctors have brought under control. That all suicides could have been prevented from taking their lives is less easy to believe. There have been suicides whose act, apparently committed while they were in full possession of their mental powers, appears in the light of the loftiest human values to have been for the best of all concerned. The only cure for them would have been the removal of their reasoning powers.

A suicide rate of more than 12 per 100,000 is a heavy toll seriously affecting the social economy of the country. Anything the doctors can do to reduce it will be as beneficial as the reduction of the death rate from smallpox or any other disease.

THE PERILS OF THE SUBMARINE

When the American submarine S-4 went down off Provincetown two years ago there was a great deal of criticism of our Navy Department. The sinking of the S-4 was the second big submarine disaster we had had in a comparatively short time; and many people felt that our naval executives must be somehow slipshod or careless.

Now, however, the tragic accident to the British submarine H-47 puts a different light on things. For it develops that Britain, too, has had submarine disasters in peace time. In 1922 the British H-42 went down with all hands after colliding with a destroyer. In 1925 the M-1 went down with 68 men. In 1921 the H-5 sank and took 57 seamen to their death. In all, the British have lost 14 submarines since the war.

The plain truth is that the submarine is a risky sort of contrivance to handle. Even with the best of management, one of the undersea boats seems bound to come to grief every so often. And unfortunately, the submarine is an essential arm of the service; all the navy men can do is carry on, and look for new ways of making the under water craft a little bit safer.

MAKING SCHOOL A DELIGHT

Before so very long school will be opening again, and children will be wending their willing or unwilling way to the classroom. In the days of our childhood, it was considered the right thing that children should hate to go to school. If a teacher made school enjoyable, she was discharged, says the Household Magazine. The theory was that virtue was found only in doing hateful things.

Today, this theory is seriously doubted. Most educators are convinced that children learn more and develop into better men and women in pleasant surroundings than in an unpleasant environment. Teachers generally are trying to make school days happy days.

Teachers can't do everything, however. The schools in a community depend on that community. Clubs, societies, parents—individually and in groups——can do a great deal toward making the schools places of happiness for children. Now—before school opens is the time to start.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—Thirteen years ago this August, John Golden, now a big-time producer, arrived on Broadway with his play "Turn To The Right." Mr. Golden has been a strong force for a clean stage. "Nothing but clean plays" is the Golden slogan and as a result he has gone cheerfully and successfully on his way while competitors on his way while competitors who dabbled in dirt have, for the most part disappeared.

Winchell Smith, who wrote most of the Golden success, has forsaken Mazda Lane for a life of east. He's spending the fortune clean plays made for him, dividing his time between his fine estate in Connecticut and a villa in Monte Carlo.

Which merely proves that all things else being equal, if you follow the advice of the late Charles Frohman, you can be a successful playwright and estates in Connecticut and Monte Carlo will follow.

Mr. Frohman's advice was: "Be brilliant."

KNOW ANY?

A visitor to a motion picture studio ran into Betty Compson, who is doing a film with the peculiar title, "The Great Gabbo."

"What does the title mean?" asked the visitor.

"Well," said Betty, "a 'gabbo' is a person who talks a lot and says nothing."

"Oh, I see," replied the visitor, "It's all about a press agent."

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

FOR FUTURE WORRY

Something we don't have to worry about today but which may have to be worried about some day is the fact that the people of northern and western Europe is already declining in England, Germany, France, Belgium, Sweden and Norway. On the other hand, population in the southern countries of Europe is increasing. This fact may some day give rise to a great war and change the course of history. The too thickly populated sections may become unbearable to the inhabitants of part of Europe and they will burst out of bounds and occupy the more favored sections.

And if the birthrate of the whole of Europe too greatly declines the day will come when an invasion of the swarming races of Asia and the far east will be at hand.

COURAGE AND INGENUITY

The human being can not be equipped with a mightier combination than the union of courage and ingenuity. One reads in the news dispatches of a Pennsylvania young man, R. W. Hornung, of Lavelle, whose legs are useless because of an accident to his spine. He drives an automobile by a special apparatus which he devised and now he may become an aviator. He has rigged up a plane with special controls which he can use.

Legs, like many other of the apparently necessary material things of life, are not necessary at all. There are very few things necessary beyond the human spirit.

BUSY OR NERVOUS

We think we don't get things done because we are busy. The real trouble is that a little business has a tendency to make us nervous. Being nervous we become immediately inefficient, lose time in hurry and false motion, and finally suffer the slow-down of fatigue. And it all came about not because we had too much to do, but because having something to do we got upset about it.

DEADLY GOSSIP

We read in a dispatch from Russia that twelve persons who gossipped about a school teacher, who surrounded her with "malice and intrigue" until she committed suicide, have been persecuted and sentenced to prison. This, in America, would be called drastic. Persecution for gossip, for slander, for "hounding" somebody, is rare. Slander wits even when successful, do not put the slanderer in jail. The court in this particular Russian town has an accurate idea of the deadly power of gossip. Sending people to jail for malicious and unfounded gossip is not too severe a penalty.

MERCHANT MARINE DECLARED TO BE MAKING PROGRESS

By E. C. PLUMMER
Vice Chairman of the U. S. Shipping Board

Edward Clarence Plummer was born at Freeport, Me., Nov. 3, 1863. He is a graduate of Bowdoin college. From 1888 to 1896 he was engaged in newspaper work at Bath, Me. Two years later he began the practice of law at Bath. For 17 years he was secretary of the Bath chamber of commerce.For 21 years he was attorney for the Atlantic Carriers' association. He has been a member of the United States Shipping board since 1921 and vice chairman since 1923. He has written a number of sea stories and poems.

The need for an American merchant marine of substantial proportions is reflected in statistics regarding water-borne foreign commerce for last year, which show that 5,100 vessels of 23,000,000 gross tons, representing 28 different countries, found employment in handling the commerce of this country.

We paid $750,000,000 for ocean transportation—$2,000,000 per day for every day in the year; and of that sum the foreigner took $1,333,000 every 24 hours, not stopping on Sundays or holidays.

The effect of the Jones-White Merchant Marine Act of 1928, designed to retrieve for the United States its lost position on the seas already are noticeable.

The mail contract provisions of this law will have assured the building of some 30 vessels, ranging from a few freighters of as low as 13 knots to fine passenger ships of 21 knots, not to mention the two mammoth craft of not less than 27 knots which will be built under the shipping board's contract with the United States lines. The building program is but a beginning.

Practical shipping men in foreign countries have built 1,600 ocean-going vessels of 10,000,000 gross tons and they now have 2,000,000 tons more under construction.

And still we hear criticism of this government because it now has made possible the building in this country of 30 ships for the benefit of our foreign commerce. The cost of such aid to American shipping as the legislation contemplates, amounts to about one-fourth of one per cent of the $8,000,000,000 worth of ocean-borne cargoes which the United States sends to and takes from foreign countries.

Just as a good name, once blasted, may only be restored through long and arduous efforts, so our once famed merchant marine, blasted by governmental acts of omission, as well as of commission, only now has begun to reappear with something of its old-time prestige, after a wearying struggle of 60 years.

ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Today and for a number of days after today I am going to talk to you about Color, a subject that is completely fascinating to me, as I think it is to most women, and one with which I have had long experience; in many, many forms.

In my laboratories I have worked with color for years. I have studied all its laws and variations. I have blended countless types of pigments for my powders, rouges, lipsticks and eye shadows, much as an artist mixes paints upon his palette.

And I have experimented with colored fabrics, in this country and abroad, draping, blending, contrasting, harmonizing their tones and textures into beautiful rhythms of color and line, merely to satisfy my own artistic feeling of design in costume.

In every country of the world I have sought and found delightful forms of color. Rich, varied, glorious color combinations, sometimes simple and elemental in their emotional appeal; often barbaric, mysterious and strange in their peculiar beauty. These colors of different countries speak as distinct and clear a language to me as the native music does. They are uniquely characteristic of the country's and the people's artistic development.

For this reason I have been unusually interested in the modern development of color in our own country. Today color, here, is everywhere, in everything.

Kitchens, bathrooms, automobiles and furniture are bright with color as they never were before. And color is becoming increasingly important in woman's clothing and accessories. New and striking color combinations are introduced by the fashion designers each year. Every season, indeed, sees a few distinctive colors launched enthusiastically by the outstanding fashion houses.

Naturally this modern vogue for color carries in its wake hundreds of interesting new ideas. And the most important of these today is the idea of costume-cosmetics.

I have long foreseen the development of this vogue, as anyone would who has worked closely with colors in cosmetics and with colors in fabrics. It has long been a principle of mine to blend cosmetics, not only to complexions, but also with costume colors in my own ensembles, and for many of my European clients who have sought my professional advice in these matters.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Won't it be awful when folks become so numerous on earth that the world no longer can be made to produce enough to feed them all!

Pessimists worried over this problem for generations—until recently, too. Once I got an interview about it from a member of the 69th congress, which was only the last but one—as lately as that.

"Pooh on such a silly idea!" observes ex-Secretary of Agriculture William M. Jardine.

Pooh! indeed. At any rate in this country, the question now is—Where in the dickens are we going to find enough people to eat up what the farmers already produce?—with crops getting bigger all the time.

"Pooh on that idea also!" says ex-Secretary Jardine.

"Whenever we need it," continues the Kansas (ex-Secretary Jardine is from the Sunflower state), "unused land awaits development in millions of acres.

"More and more intensive methods of cultivation will increase present yields per acre almost indefinitely.

"So much for the prospect of agriculture's ultimate inability to continue producing enough to feed the earth's population.

"Claims that the farmer is over-producing today," proceeded the ex-cabinet member, "are just as groundless as fears that, some time in the future, there will not be enough to go around.

"For every meal that American agriculture has left on its hands, someone somewhere involuntarily is doing without that meal.

"In China there is starvation. Europe is on short rations. Even in our own southern states there are many whose allowance is not what it ought to be.

"Would-be consumers for everything grown on American farms are not lacking," said the former secretary.

"Our farmers' problem is one of delivery to would-be consumers—at prices it is possible for them to pay.

"It is a question of marketing.

"A big city absorbs farm products by the trainload—whole trainloads, all of the same thing.

"There is economy in 'trainload deliveries.

"But Podunk has a capacity for only part of a carload—and that must be mixed.

"Too expensive! Too slow, besides—products spoil on the road."

"The farmers need centralization of salesmanship, to enable them to bargain—against the centralized purchasing power to which they must sell.

"They need more points of concentration—from which to radiate their products to many Podunks.

"More money from consumers is not the object—lower, rather.

"I say again—the farmer's object is to deliver his products to the would-be consumer at prices which the latter CAN AFFORD TO PAY.

"This means abroad—in Europe and Asia—as well as here at home.

"The Chinese are poor, yes. Nevertheless, we may be sure they will at least buy food—if they can. If we improve our distributing machinery overseas—just as we must improve it at home—we shall begin to make it possible for more and more Chinese to buy.

"Higher prices? Exactly the contrary. Prices that the consumer can pay are essential—or he cannot buy.

"Of course, the process will cut out a swarm of middle men. What will become of them? Oh, I don't know. Doubtless some will be absorbed into the improved new system. Some will have to find other occupations.

"They cannot be permitted to stand in the way of a better world.

"All this calls for co-operation"—which is the task ex-Secretary Jardine is toiling now to perfect, as he toiled to organize it during his four years in office—for the recently passed farm bill virtually is the one he willed to his successor, Secretary Arthur M. Hyde, on his retirement a few weeks ago.

"Only," he adds peevishly, "it has been a mighty hard job to make the public understand what its purpose is.

"It's true," concluded the ex-secretary, "that perfect co-ordination, from producer to consumer, has been a problem of the ages in agriculture, and its solution never has been arrived at yet, but I am hopeful that at last we are on our way."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

BREAKFAST
Melon
Pancakes Maple Syrup
Bacon, Fried Crisp
Coffee

LLUNCHEON
Sandwiches
Green Apple Sauce
Chocolate Cake Tea or Milk

DINNEER
Blanket Roasted Ham
Mashed Potatoes
Dressing made from Ham
Spinach Tomato Salad
Berry Pie Coffee

This menu is for a good sized and hearty family. The luncheon menu may be eaten on the porch or sunroom, or even taken on a picnic. Green apple sauce is, in my estimation, a dish for the gods.

Today's Recipes

Chocolate Cake—One-fourth cup butter, one cup sugar, creamed, one egg, one-half cup sour milk, one-fourth teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon vanilla, two squares chocolate melted in one-third cup boiling water.

Icing—Mix ingredients as listed: one egg white, one cup sugar, four teaspoons water. Heat in double boiler for eight minutes, then add chocolate to suit.

Green Apple Sauce—Wash green apples, remove any bad places and worm holes, cut up, skins, cores and all, and cook soft in enough water to almost cover. Strain through wire strainer, add sugar to suit the taste—do not make it too sweet—and cook up until sugar and sauce are well blended. Serve hot or cold.

Suggestions Laundering Covers

For many reasons, it is advisable to wash the heavy covers before putting them away. Absolute cleanliness is one of the reliable safeguards against the ravages of moths. Then, too, when you need your covers in the fall, you will not want to stop to launder them.

It is not difficult to wash quilts and blankets successfully if certain precautions are carefully observed. Shrinkage, lumpiness, and discoloration are the invariable results of ignoring these precautions. Shrinkage is usually caused by sudden changes of temperature of the water during washing or rinsing, therefore an even lukewarm temperature is essential throughout the procedure. Twisting or rubbing are also responsible for a number of unsuccessful results.

Each cover should be immersed in a tub of lukewarm soapsuds, and the suds pressed through the fabric. When the suds become flat and the wated soiled, repeat the process with clean water and fresh suds. Slight suds in the rinsing water will help to keep the fabric soft and fluffy. Blankets and quilts are best dried out of doors on a warm, windy day. While on the line, the quilts should be shaken frequently to help in the distribution of the filling, and beaten gently with a cane when dry. The blankets that are held in readiness for cool summer evenings should be encased in light, washable blanket covers.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

"Dear Doctor: I am 15 years old and feel healthy in every way except one: I have a kind of rash, an itching, burning rash. The first time I noticed it was a year ago, in the spring; it stayed with me during the summer, but left in the winter. This month it has come back again. I went to a doctor, who thought it was caused by strawberries. The rash continues and burns and itches if I become warm or go out into the sun. It itches not only when I'm in the sun but also at night, and it has been itching continuously for two days and nights. This itching occurs mostly on the backs of my hands, on my neck and face. The doctor told me to not eat any starchy foods and gave me some medicine, with but little relief. RAPHAEL."

I think perhaps you belong to the small group of those whose skins are sensitized to the chemical rays of the sun, Raphael. Those who are so afflicted develop itchy rashes, and sometimes hive-like patches will form, and if scratched very much they become eczematous.

What causes this sensitization is not known. Perhaps there is something wrong with the diet, or some particular food that causes it. For instance, buckwheat will cause some to have a sensitized skin, so much so that they can't take it at all. Do you eat buckwheat cakes?

It's too bad for you to have to forego your sunlight treatments for you are a growing boy, but perhaps you'll have to until you find out what is causing the sensitization.

There are certain creams advertised now that are said to allow the ultra-violet or healing rays of the sun to go through, but obstruct the chemical rays. Whether there is any virtue in these creams or not, I don't know; but you might try them.

If you find you have to keep out of the direct sunlight, I think you should take some cod liver oil, Raphael, for it is very high in vitamin D which is developed in the skin when exposed to sunlight. It usually is given to babies to keep them from having rickets. You are far from being a baby, but his vitamin D is also necessary for all of us, for it has to do with the normal use of calcium and phosphorous in the body. Have you studied chemistry? Then you know that calcium and phosphorous are necessary for the bones and teeth and the blood. Cod liver oil is also very high in the growth of vitamin A. You will be growing for some time yet. I hope you'll grow out of being sensitized to the sun! (If that is your trouble. It may be just prickly heat.)

Mrs. P.—If you do not tolerate well the three-day liquid diet at the beginning of your reduction course, don't take it. Simply go on a mixed diet of 1,000 calories (a little more or less, depending on what is your reducing number)—right away. Those who can go on the three-day liquid diet without discomfort, get a good start because the stomach is immediately "shrunk" and they lose from 5 to 10 pounds, which is a great stimulus to carry on. The slight headache which sometimes occurs can be relieved by taking 100 of the allowed calories in a slice of bread.

(Those who need instructions on how to reduce or gain in weight may have our phamphlet on the subject by following column rules.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Could you please tell me what could possibly be wrong with me? It seems as though I attract the attention of the 'toughs.' Now don't think this is my imagination, for it isn't. If I walk down the street I am stopped. At a show I receive notes and some call me up. I have tried to look at myself from every possible viewpoint, but I am still puzzled. Perhaps you could find something that I have overlooked.

"Could you also give me some details about a slumber party. What should one wear to a supper which is to be followed by a live party to a show? IBUN."

The "tough" element of a town is quite apt to seem to have nothing else to do but annoy the more respectable citizens, dear, and attractive girls are always considered fair game to them. If they annoy you on the street you can appeal to the police.

It is always well to have a male escort when you have to go past their hang-outs, which is, of course, sometimes necessary. Pay no attention whatever to them, and when they find that you are not in the least interested they will stop. Make a point of having your father or mother answer the 'phone and make the person calling tell you who they are before you go. That would discourage them from calling.

At a "slumber" party very little sleeping is done, of course. You take your most engaging pajama suit and visit and eat and talk pretty nearly all night. One of the sleeveless printed chiffon or georgette dresses with the little accompanying jacket would be just the right thing to wear to the supper and theatre party. If you haven't one, any pretty thin sleeveless summer dress and light wrap is appropriate.

BROWN EYED JEMMY: Wonder if you would mind taking a friendly tip, Jemmy. Your letter was hard to read. Don't you think a boy in high school should do just a bit better? It would help a lot, both in school and business, for you to be able to write a well-spelled and legible letter.

Yes, I think it ought to be possible for you to take the car once in awhile and go to see the girl friend, and even go to an occasional dance. Well conducted dances are all right for well conducted young people. Do you take good care of the car and get back in good time when allowed to go out?

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a young girl of 17 in love with a boy four years my senior. My girl friend is also in love with him. She is one of the 'modern flappers,' and she spends all of her time at his home. I have had one date with him but had to break it. He knows the reason, but has never asked me for another, and I don't give him a chance to talk so very long because other people are talking about the other girl and say she is 'running after him,' and I don't want them to think that of me. Now, Virginia, do you think I am doing right or not. CHIC.'

Yes, of course, I think you are doing right. Don't snub the young man to show him you don't want to run after him, however. He won't know what it's all about. Just be friendly and pleasant when you meet.

"Dear Virginia Lee: We are two girls in our early teens who are popular and wanting to go with two bashful boys who are very popular. We have had quite a lot of encouragement lately. We would like your advice as to how to win their affection.

"TWO PALS, S. and D."

Don't chase them, girls, but be friendly and chatty.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

BEE JUSTICE

If a bee could sniff, Nursie now did so.

"Seen me cross? Of course you haven't! And why?" Nursie glared at Her Majesty. "Because this is the first time in your life I have known you to do anything foolish." Nursie's eyes softened.

"Don't you remember what good care I took of you when you were a wee grub? Oh, well, I dare say you don't your majesty, dear. You were too young to realize how hard Worked to find the finest flower dust so that you should have the finest food to make you grow up strong and beautiful, to rule as our beloved Queen. Why, my pockets are all worn out with the many loads of pollen I carried to your cradle.

"You don't think of all your old nurse has done for you, and what all the other nurses are doing at this very moment to care for and to protect your babies when you allow this stranger to roam at his will. Because you think he will amuse you for a time, you invite this boy to be a guest in our kingdom. Trust him at your risk! He may eat up our honey and destroy our cells!"

At the nurse's words Peter lost his temper completely.

"I'll do nothing of the sort, you horrid old thing!" shouted he. "I am no more thief than you are. I don't want a scrap of your old honey. I'd starve before I would so much as taste it!"

"Of course he doesn't want our honey! Of course he does!" argued the bees among themselves.

"Silence," commanded the Queen at last, and Peter saw Her Highness could be stern when she wanted to be. "I shall settle this thing as I believe best and you, my subjects, shall bow to my judgment. I trust the boy and I believe he tells the truth and will stick to his promise. You will not harm a hair of our wing nor touch a drop of honey until you are asked to, will you?" the Queen bent a gracious head toward the boy.

"I should say not. On my word of honor!"

Peter's voice was so loud every bee, even those in the farthermost corner of the room, could hear him.

Next: "Nursie Is Reproved and Forgiven."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom and the knowledge of the holy is understanding. For by me thy days shall be multiplied, and the years of thy life shall be increased.—Proverbs, ix, 10, 11.

STOPPING THE WASTE OF LIVES

The interesting theory that suicidal tendencies are curable has been advanced by two members of the neuro-psychiatric division of the department of health of Detroit. The true suicide is born, as poets and artists are, according to Drs. Heldt and Moloney; but he does not always die by his own hand. Absence of the complementary environmental factor apparently sterilizes an inherited suicidal propensity. When the two meet, a true suicide suicides.

The claim of competent medical men to be able to prevent the fatal conjunction of the hereditary and environmental factors in suicide should be easy to admit in a large percentage of cases. Curing suicidal tendencies would not seem to be more difficult than curing some of the mental ailments that the doctors have brought under control. That all suicides could have been prevented from taking their lives is less easy to believe. There have been suicides whose act, apparently committed while they were in full possession of their mental powers, appears in the light of the loftiest human values to have been for the best of all concerned. The only cure for them would have been the removal of their reasoning powers.

A suicide rate of more than 12 per 100,000 is a heavy toll seriously affecting the social economy of the country. Anything the doctors can do to reduce it will be as beneficial as the reduction of the death rate from smallpox or any other disease.

THE PERILS OF THE SUBMARINE

When the American submarine S-4 went down off Provincetown two years ago there was a great deal of criticism of our Navy Department. The sinking of the S-4 was the second big submarine disaster we had had in a comparatively short time; and many people felt that our naval executives must be somehow slipshod or careless.

Now, however, the tragic accident to the British submarine H-47 puts a different light on things. For it develops that Britain, too, has had submarine disasters in peace time. In 1922 the British H-42 went down with all hands after colliding with a destroyer. In 1925 the M-1 went down with 68 men. In 1921 the H-5 sank and took 57 seamen to their death. In all, the British have lost 14 submarines since the war.

The plain truth is that the submarine is a risky sort of contrivance to handle. Even with the best of management, one of the undersea boats seems bound to come to grief every so often. And unfortunately, the submarine is an essential arm of the service; all the navy men can do is carry on, and look for new ways of making the under water craft a little bit safer.

MAKING SCHOOL A DELIGHT

Before so very long school will be opening again, and children will be wending their willing or unwilling way to the classroom. In the days of our childhood, it was considered the right thing that children should hate to go to school. If a teacher made school enjoyable, she was discharged, says the Household Magazine. The theory was that virtue was found only in doing hateful things.

Today, this theory is seriously doubted. Most educators are convinced that children learn more and develop into better men and women in pleasant surroundings than in an unpleasant environment. Teachers generally are trying to make school days happy days.

Teachers can't do everything, however. The schools in a community depend on that community. Clubs, societies, parents—individually and in groups——can do a great deal toward making the schools places of happiness for children. Now—before school opens is the time to start.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—Thirteen years ago this August, John Golden, now a big-time producer, arrived on Broadway with his play "Turn To The Right." Mr. Golden has been a strong force for a clean stage. "Nothing but clean plays" is the Golden slogan and as a result he has gone cheerfully and successfully on his way while competitors on his way while competitors who dabbled in dirt have, for the most part disappeared.

Winchell Smith, who wrote most of the Golden success, has forsaken Mazda Lane for a life of east. He's spending the fortune clean plays made for him, dividing his time between his fine estate in Connecticut and a villa in Monte Carlo.

Which merely proves that all things else being equal, if you follow the advice of the late Charles Frohman, you can be a successful playwright and estates in Connecticut and Monte Carlo will follow.

Mr. Frohman's advice was: "Be brilliant."

KNOW ANY?

A visitor to a motion picture studio ran into Betty Compson, who is doing a film with the peculiar title, "The Great Gabbo."

"What does the title mean?" asked the visitor.

"Well," said Betty, "a 'gabbo' is a person who talks a lot and says nothing."

"Oh, I see," replied the visitor, "It's all about a press agent."

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

FOR FUTURE WORRY

Something we don't have to worry about today but which may have to be worried about some day is the fact that the people of northern and western Europe is already declining in England, Germany, France, Belgium, Sweden and Norway. On the other hand, population in the southern countries of Europe is increasing. This fact may some day give rise to a great war and change the course of history. The too thickly populated sections may become unbearable to the inhabitants of part of Europe and they will burst out of bounds and occupy the more favored sections.

And if the birthrate of the whole of Europe too greatly declines the day will come when an invasion of the swarming races of Asia and the far east will be at hand.

COURAGE AND INGENUITY

The human being can not be equipped with a mightier combination than the union of courage and ingenuity. One reads in the news dispatches of a Pennsylvania young man, R. W. Hornung, of Lavelle, whose legs are useless because of an accident to his spine. He drives an automobile by a special apparatus which he devised and now he may become an aviator. He has rigged up a plane with special controls which he can use.

Legs, like many other of the apparently necessary material things of life, are not necessary at all. There are very few things necessary beyond the human spirit.

BUSY OR NERVOUS

We think we don't get things done because we are busy. The real trouble is that a little business has a tendency to make us nervous. Being nervous we become immediately inefficient, lose time in hurry and false motion, and finally suffer the slow-down of fatigue. And it all came about not because we had too much to do, but because having something to do we got upset about it.

DEADLY GOSSIP

We read in a dispatch from Russia that twelve persons who gossipped about a school teacher, who surrounded her with "malice and intrigue" until she committed suicide, have been persecuted and sentenced to prison. This, in America, would be called drastic. Persecution for gossip, for slander, for "hounding" somebody, is rare. Slander wits even when successful, do not put the slanderer in jail. The court in this particular Russian town has an accurate idea of the deadly power of gossip. Sending people to jail for malicious and unfounded gossip is not too severe a penalty.

MERCHANT MARINE DECLARED TO BE MAKING PROGRESS

By E. C. PLUMMER

Vice Chairman of the U. S. Shipping Board

(Edward Clarence Plummer was born at Freeport, Me., Nov. 3, 1863. He is a graduate of Bowdoin college. From 1888 to 1896 he was engaged in newspaper work at Bath, Me. Two years later he began the practice of law at Bath. For 17 years he was secretary of the Bath chamber of commerce. For 21 years he was attorney for the Atlantic Carriers' association. He has been a member of the United States Shipping board since 1921 and vice chairman since 1923. He has written a number of sea stories and poems.

The need for an American merchant marine of substantial proportions is reflected in statistics regarding water-borne foreign commerce for last year, which show that 5,100 vessels of 23,000,000 gross tons, representing 28 different countries, found employment in handling the commerce of this country.

We paid $750,000,000 for ocean transportation—$2,000,000 per day for every day in the year; and of that sum the foreigner took $1,333,000 every 24 hours, not stopping on Sundays or holidays.

The effect of the Jones-White Merchant Marine Act of 1928, designed to retrieve for the United States its lost position on the seas already are noticeable.

The mail contract provisions of this law will have assured the building of some 30 vessels, ranging from a few freighters of as low as 13 knots to fine passenger ships of 21 knots, not to mention the two mammoth craft of not less than 27 knots which will be built under the shipping board's contract with the United States lines. The building program is but a beginning.

Practical shipping men in foreign countries have built 1,600 ocean-going vessels of 10,000,000 gross tons and they now have 2,000,000 tons more under construction.

And still we hear criticism of this government because it now has made possible the building in this country of 30 ships for the benefit of our foreign commerce. The cost of such aid to American shipping as the legislation contemplates, amounts to about one-fourth of one per cent of the $8,000,000,000 worth of ocean-borne cargoes which the United States sends to and takes from foreign countries.

Just as a good name, once blasted, may only be restored through long and arduous efforts, so our once famed merchant marine, blasted by governmental acts of omission, as well as of commission, only now has begun to reappear with something of its old-time prestige, after a wearying struggle of 60 years.

ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Today and for a number of days after today I am going to talk to you about Color, a subject that is completely fascinating to me, as I think it is to most women, and one with which I have had long experience in many, many forms.

In my laboratories I have worked with color for years. I have studied all its laws and variations. I have blended countless types of pigments for my powders, rouges, lipsticks and eye shadows, much as an artist mixes paints upon his palette.

And I have experimented with colored fabrics, in this country and abroad, draping, blending, contrasting, harmonizing their tones and textures into beautiful rhythms of color and line, merely to satisfy my own artistic feeling of design in costume.

In every country of the world I have sought and found delightful forms of color. Rich, varied, glorious color combinations, sometimes simple and elemental in their emotional appeal; often barbaric, mysterious and strange in their peculiar beauty. These colors of different countries speak as distinct and clear a language to me as the native music does. They are uniquely characteristic of the country's and the people's artistic development.

For this reason I have been unusually interested in the modern development of color in our own country. Today color, here, is everywhere, in everything.

Kitchens, bathrooms, automobiles and furniture are bright with color as they never were before. And color is becoming increasingly important in woman's clothing and accessories. New and striking color combinations are introduced by the fashion designers each year. Every season, indeed, sees a few distinctive colors launched enthusiastically by the outstanding fashion houses.

Naturally this modern vogue for color carries in its wake hundreds of interesting new ideas. And the most important of these today is the idea of costume-cosmetics.

I have long foreseen the development of this vogue, as anyone would who has worked closely with colors in cosmetics and with colors in fabrics. It has long been a principle of mine to blend cosmetics, not only to complexions, but also with costume colors in my own ensembles, and for many of my European clients who have sought my professional advice in these matters.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Won't it be awful when folks become so numerous on earth that the world no longer can be made to produce enough to feed them all!

Pessimists worried over this problem for generations—until recently, too. Once I got an interview about it from a member of the 69th congress, which was only the last but one—as lately as that.

"Pooh on such a silly idea!" observes ex-Secretary of Agriculture William M. Jardine.

Pooh! indeed. At any rate in this country, the question now is—Where in the dickens are we going to find enough people to eat up what the farmers already produce?—with crops getting bigger all the time.

"Pooh on that idea also!" says ex-Secretary Jardine.

"Whenever we need it," continues the Kansas (ex-Secretary Jardine is from the Sunflower state), "unused land awaits development in millions of acres.

"More and more intensive methods of cultivation will increase present yields per acre almost indefinitely.

"So much for the prospect of agriculture's ultimate inability to continue producing enough to feed the earth's population.

"Claims that the farmer is over-producing today," proceeded the ex-cabinet member, "are just as groundless as fears that, some time in the future, there will not be enough to go around.

"For every meal that American agriculture has left on its hands, someone somewhere involuntarily is doing without that meal.

"In China there is starvation. Europe is on short rations. Even in our own southern states there are many whose allowance is not what it ought to be.

"Would-be consumers for everything grown on American farms are not lacking," said the former secretary.

"Our farmers' problem is one of delivery to would-be consumers—at prices it is possible for them to pay.

"It is a question of marketing.

"A big city absorbs farm products by the trainload—whole trainloads, all of the same thing.

"There is economy in trainload deliveries.

"But Podunk has a capacity for only part of a carload—and that must be mixed.

"Too expensive! Too slow, besides—products spoil on the road."

"The farmers need centralization of salesmanship, to enable them to bargain—against the centralized purchasing power to which they must sell.

"They need more points of concentration—from which to radiate their products to many Podunks.

"More money from consumers is not the object—lower, rather.

"I say again—the farmer's object is to deliver his products to the would-be consumer at prices which the latter CAN AFFORD TO PAY.

"This means abroad—in Europe and Asia—as well as here at home.

"The Chinese are poor, yes. Nevertheless, we may be sure they will at least buy food—if they can. If we improve our distributing machinery overseas—just as we must improve it at home—we shall begin to make it possible for more and more Chinese to buy.

"Higher prices? Exactly the contrary. Prices that the consumer can pay are essential—or he cannot buy.

"Of course, the process will cut out a swarm of middle men. What will become of them? Oh, I don't know. Doubtless some will be absorbed into the improved new system. Some will have to find other occupations.

"They cannot be permitted to stand in the way of a better world.

"All this calls for co-operation"—which is the task ex-Secretary Jardine is toiling now to perfect, as he toiled to organize it during his four years in office—for the recently passed farm bill virtually is the one he willed to his successor, Secretary Arthur M. Hyde, on his retirement a few weeks ago.

"Only," he adds peevishly, "it has been a mighty hard job to make the public understand what its purpose is.

"It's true," concluded the ex-secretary, "that perfect co-ordination, from producer to consumer, has been a problem of the ages in agriculture, and its solution never has been arrived at yet, but I am hopeful that at last we are on our way."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

BREAKFAST
Melon
Pancakes Maple Syrup
Bacon, Fried Crisp
Coffee

LLUNCHEON
Sandwiches
Green Apple Sauce
Chocolate Cake Tea or Milk

DINNEER
Blanket Roasted Ham
Mashed Potatoes
Dressing made from Ham
Spinach Tomato Salad
Berry Pie Coffee

This menu is for a good sized and hearty family. The luncheon menu may be eaten on the porch or sunroom, or even taken on a picnic. Green apple sauce is, in my estimation, a dish for the gods.

Today's Recipes

Chocolate Cake—One-fourth cup butter, one cup sugar, creamed, one egg, one-half cup sour milk, one-fourth teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon vanilla, two squares chocolate melted in one-third cup boiling water.

Icing—Mix ingredients as listed: one egg white, one cup sugar, four teaspoons water. Heat in double boiler for eight minutes, then add chocolate to suit.

Green Apple Sauce—Wash green apples, remove any bad places and worm holes, cut up, skins, cores and all, and cook soft in enough water to almost cover. Strain through wire strainer, add sugar to suit the taste—do not make it too sweet—and cook up until sugar and sauce are well blended. Serve hot or cold.

Suggestions Laundering Covers

For many reasons, it is advisable to wash the heavy covers before putting them away. Absolute cleanliness is one of the reliable safeguards against the ravages of moths. Then, too, when you need your covers in the fall, you will not want to stop to launder them.

It is not difficult to wash quilts and blankets successfully if certain precautions are carefully observed. Shrinkage, lumpiness, and discoloration are the invariable results of ignoring these precautions. Shrinkage is usually caused by sudden changes of temperature of the water during washing or rinsing, therefore an even lukewarm temperature is essential throughout the procedure. Twisting or rubbing are also responsible for a number of unsuccessful results.

Each cover should be immersed in a tub of lukewarm soapsuds, and the suds pressed through the fabric. When the suds become flat and the wated soiled, repeat the process with clean water and fresh suds. Slight suds in the rinsing water will help to keep the fabric soft and fluffy. Blankets and quilts are best dried out of doors on a warm, windy day. While on the line, the quilts should be shaken frequently to help in the distribution of the filling, and beaten gently with a cane when dry. The blankets that are held in readiness for cool summer evenings should be encased in light, washable blanket covers.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

"Dear Doctor: I am 15 years old and feel healthy in every way except one: I have a kind of rash, an itching, burning rash. The first time I noticed it was a year ago, in the spring; it stayed with me during the summer, but left in the winter. This month it has come back again. I went to a doctor, who thought it was caused by strawberries. The rash continues and burns and itches if I become warm or go out into the sun. It itches not only when I'm in the sun but also at night, and it has been itching continuously for two days and nights. This itching occurs mostly on the backs of my hands, on my neck and face. The doctor told me to not eat any starchy foods and gave me some medicine, with but little relief. RAPHAEL."

I think perhaps you belong to the small group of those whose skins are sensitized to the chemical rays of the sun, Raphael. Those who are so afflicted develop itchy rashes, and sometimes hive-like patches will form, and if scratched very much they become eczematous.

What causes this sensitization is not known. Perhaps there is something wrong with the diet, or some particular food that causes it. For instance, buckwheat will cause some to have a sensitized skin, so much so that they can't take it at all. Do you eat buckwheat cakes?

It's too bad for you to have to forego your sunlight treatments for you are a growing boy, but perhaps you'll have to until you find out what is causing the sensitization.

There are certain creams advertised now that are said to allow the ultra-violet or healing rays of the sun to go through, but obstruct the chemical rays. Whether there is any virtue in these creams or not, I don't know; but you might try them.

If you find you have to keep out of the direct sunlight, I think you should take some cod liver oil, Raphael, for it is very high in vitamin D which is developed in the skin when exposed to sunlight. It usually is given to babies to keep them from having rickets. You are far from being a baby, but his vitamin D is also necessary for all of us, for it has to do with the normal use of calcium and phosphorous in the body. Have you studied chemistry? Then you know that calcium and phosphorous are necessary for the bones and teeth and the blood. Cod liver oil is also very high in the growth of vitamin A. You will be growing for some time yet. I hope you'll grow out of being sensitized to the sun! (If that is your trouble. It may be just prickly heat.)

Mrs. P.—If you do not tolerate well the three-day liquid diet at the beginning of your reduction course, don't take it. Simply go on a mixed diet of 1,000 calories (a little more or less, depending on what is your reducing number)—right away. Those who can go on the three-day liquid diet without discomfort, get a good start because the stomach is immediately "shrunk" and they lose from 5 to 10 pounds, which is a great stimulus to carry on. The slight headache which sometimes occurs can be relieved by taking 100 of the allowed calories in a slice of bread.

(Those who need instructions on how to reduce or gain in weight may have our phamphlet on the subject by following column rules.

Mrs. H. N.—Get the August number of the Journal of the Outdoor Life (either at your newsstand or from the publishers, Journal of the Outdoor Life, 370 Seventh Avenue, New York City). You will find something of particular interest to you. All tubercular patients can read, with profit, this magazine which is written especially for them.)

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of a general interest will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Could you please tell me what could possibly be wrong with me? It seems as though I attract the attention of the 'toughs.' Now don't think this is my imagination, for it isn't. If I walk down the street I am stopped. At a show I receive notes and some call me up. I have tried to look at myself from every possible viewpoint, but I am still puzzled. Perhaps you could find something that I have overlooked.

"Could you also give me some details about a slumber party. What should one wear to a supper which is to be followed by a live party to a show? IBUN."

The "tough" element of a town is quite apt to seem to have nothing else to do but annoy the more respectable citizens, dear, and attractive girls are always considered fair game to them. If they annoy you on the street you can appeal to the police.

It is always well to have a male escort when you have to go past their hang-outs, which is, of course, sometimes necessary. Pay no attention whatever to them, and when they find that you are not in the least interested they will stop. Make a point of having your father or mother answer the phone and make the person calling tell you who they are before you go. That would discourage them from calling.

At a "slumber" party very little sleeping is done, of course. You take your most engaging pajama suit and visit and eat and talk pretty nearly all night. One of the sleeveless printed chiffon or georgette dresses with the little accompanying jacket would be just the right thing to wear to the supper and theatre party. If you haven't one, any pretty thin sleeveless summer dress and light wrap is appropriate.

BROWN EYED JEMMY: Wonder if you would mind taking a friendly tip, Jemmy. Your letter was hard to read. Don't you think a boy in high school should do just a bit better? It would help a lot, both in school and business, for you to be able to write a well-spelled and legible letter.

Yes, I think it ought to be possible for you to take the car once in awhile and go to see the girl friend, and even go to an occasional dance. Well conducted dances are all right for well conducted young people. Do you take good care of the car and get back in good time when allowed to go out?

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a young girl of 17 in love with a boy four years my senior. My girl friend is also in love with him. She is one of the 'modern flappers,' and she spends all of her time at his home. I have had one date with him but had to break it. He knows the reason, but has never asked me for another, and I don't give him a chance to talk so very long because other people are talking about the other girl and say she is 'running after him,' and I don't want them to think that of me. Now, Virginia, do you think I am doing right or not. CHIC.'

Yes, of course, I think you are doing right. Don't snub the young man to show him you don't want to run after him, however. He won't know what it's all about. Just be friendly and pleasant when you meet.

"Dear Virginia Lee: We are two girls in our early teens who are popular and wanting to go with two bashful boys who are very popular. We have had quite a lot of encouragement lately. We would like your advice as to how to win their affection.

"TWO PALS, S. and D."

Don't chase them, girls, but be friendly and chatty.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

BEE JUSTICE

If a bee could sniff, Nursie now did so.

"Seen me cross? Of course you haven't! And why?" Nursie glared at Her Majesty. "Because this is the first time in your life I have known you to do anything foolish." Nursie's eyes softened.

"Don't you remember what good care I took of you when you were a wee grub? Oh, well, I dare say you don't your majesty, dear. You were too young to realize how hard Worked to find the finest flower dust so that you should have the finest food to make you grow up strong and beautiful, to rule as our beloved Queen. Why, my pockets are all worn out with the many loads of pollen I carried to your cradle.

"You don't think of all your old nurse has done for you, and what all the other nurses are doing at this very moment to care for and to protect your babies when you allow this stranger to roam at his will. Because you think he will amuse you for a time, you invite this boy to be a guest in our kingdom. Trust him at your risk! He may eat up our honey and destroy our cells!"

At the nurse's words Peter lost his temper completely.

"I'll do nothing of the sort, you horrid old thing!" shouted he. "I am no more thief than you are. I don't want a scrap of your old honey. I'd starve before I would so much as taste it!"

"Of course he doesn't want our honey! Of course he does!" argued the bees among themselves.

"Silence," commanded the Queen at last, and Peter saw Her Highness could be stern when she wanted to be. "I shall settle this thing as I believe best and you, my subjects, shall bow to my judgment. I trust the boy and I believe he tells the truth and will stick to his promise. You will not harm a hair of our wing nor touch a drop of honey until you are asked to, will you?" the Queen bent a gracious head toward the boy.

"I should say not. On my word of honor!"

Peter's voice was so loud every bee, even those in the farthermost corner of the room, could hear him.

Loughran Defends His Title For Last Time

The first opportunity for fight fans in this vicinity to obtain a glimpse of Max Schmeling, heralded as the future world's heavyweight champion, was afforded Thursday night when the German Dempsey (so called because he so closely resembles the Manassa Mauler), gave a six-round boxing exhibition with sparring mates at Forest Park in Dayton.

Because of threatening weather the exhibition attracted only 1,200 customers. As sixteen-ounce mittens were used and Schmeling, with one exception, pulled all of his punches, the leading challenger for the heavyweight crown revealed few if any tricks that he may employ when he faces Jack Sharkey for the heavy title next September.

The end of the road came to Jimmy Braddock, 23-year-old New Jersey challenger when he was handed a merry pasting by Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, in their fifteen-round bout at the Yankee Stadium at New York Thursday night.

Loughran easily outfought Braddock and won all the way, once again demonstrating the superiority of brains over brawn, in other words, boxing skill over punching ability.

It was almost the unanimous opinion that the youthful challenger was given a sound drubbing and is apparently erased from the light heavyweight pugilistic map, at least for some time to come.

A number of challengers have arisen to question Laughran's right to the title but the most persistent have now been eliminated. Tommy has been kept fairly busy in his division but nobody has appeared to seriously threaten his crown.

* * *

Comparatively little comment has been occasioned by a recent announcement that Jack Dempsey plans to return to the ring—possibly because the statement failed to cause the slightest ripple of surprise to anyone who has paid the boxing game even the most casual attention.

Dempsey is now under the management of Will Duffy, who, by the way, is his seventh manager. Duffy tips off the reason for Dempsey's return to the ring in the disclosure that Jack will give serious consideration to an offer of $750,000 to meet any heavyweight.

The lure of the ring is strong for a fellow like Dempsey but the lure of the almighty dollar, particularly 750,000 of them, is even stronger for a fellow like Dempsey.

RAIN WASHES OUT SOFTBALL CONTEST

The league-leading Downtown Country Club and Lang Chevrolet Co. softball teams were rained out of a scheduled National League game Thursday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field. A severe rainstorm late in the afternoon drenched the playing field and forced postponement of the game until Friday night.

The Downtowners are clinging to first place with a one-game lead but a victory for Langs would place this team in a three-way tie for the league leadership with Harness Cigars and the D. T. C. Club.

CHAMPION DEFEATS BRADDOCK BUT WILL ENTER HEAVY CLASS

Believes Effort To Make Weight Was Weakening

NEW YORK, July 19.—Battle-scarred and weary from fifteen rounds of hard fighting with James J. Braddock, Tommy Loughran sat in his hotel room today and told the United Press he would never again defend the light-heavyweight championship. He can't make the weight any longer.

Loughran successfully defended the title for the sixth time in nineteen months against the young New Jersey challenger at Yankee stadium last night, but it was the last time.

"I'm through as a light-heavyweight," Loughran said. "I will never again defend the title. The weight's too tough to make. I made it this time but it left me 75 per cent efficient."

Having cleaned up his division with a clean cut victory over Braddock, Loughran today turned his attention to the heavyweight division and announced he was ready to meet Max Schmeling of Germany, Jack Sharkey or any other outstanding heavyweight.

"My record surpasses Sharkey's and I think I would have a better chance than him of defeating Schmeling," Tommy said. "I haven't lost a fight since 1925 and I've fought more first class men than any heavyweight."

Despite the fact that he was weakened by the ordeal of making the class weight, Loughran outclassed, outfought and outsmarted the young challenger. After drying out for two days and spending forty-five minutes in a steam room before weighing in, Loughran scaled 174. Braddock weighed 170.

There were only two stages during the fight when Braddock looked like he might have a chance to win. The black-haired challenger ripped a right hook to the champion's eye in the first round and started a stream of blood flowing. Braddock fought viciously in this round and sent Loughran to his corner with a worried look on his face.

After Braddock had a slight edge in the second round, Loughran settled down to his task and stabbed, jabbed and hooked the challenger at will until the seventh round, piling up a safe lead.

In a collision their heads butted in this round and cut over Loughran's left eye was aggravated and spurted blood, covering the champion's face in a red mask.

"That was the only time during the fight I was worried," Loughran said. "I was afraid the referee might stop the fight because I was bleeding so much."

Loughran said that he believed he might have knocked out Braddock but for the loss of strength in making the weight.

Loughran fought a cool, calm, consistent fight. He jabbed and backed away most of the fight, making Braddock chase him. The challenger gamely trailed him in a futile effort to reach a vital spot with his highly-touted right fist.

"Braddock was too wild with his right hand," Loughran said. "He just threw it blindly and I had no trouble guarding my chin."

Although Loughran was not extended as much as he was by Leo Lomski who knocked Tommy down twice in the first round, the champion came out of the battle with more scars. The wound over his right eye, about two inches long, required one stitch and the champion's head which bore three cuts from a collision was heavily bandaged. There was a small cut on the lower lip.

The United Press score gave Loughran seven rounds, Braddock four, with four even.

A crowd of about 25,000 paid approximately $115,000 to see the fight.

Dave Shade, California middleweight, defeated Rene De Vosof, of Belgium in the ten-round semi-final.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ORDERS "DIRTY" BALLS TO CHECK HOME RUN HITTING

NEW YORK, July 19.—The strident ballyhoo for and against the alleged lively baseball evidently has gotten under the collective hides of National League fathers.

John A. Heydler, president of the older circuit, has instructed his umpires to treat all new balls with a nice massage of top soil before they are put in play, tacitly admitting that, perhaps, the ball now used in the major leagues is a bit too easy to hit.

The order went out before yesterday's games and a glance at the scoring records for the four games played in the league yesterday afternoon will reveal that Johnny Frederick, Brooklyn fly snagger, was the only man able to hit the ball far and hard enough to circle the bases.

It was indeed surprising, for there have been few days this year which have failed to see at least a good half dozen balls smacked out of a National League park, or into some distant bleachers for a home run.

Still, one is reluctant to admit that the simple process of rubbing sand on the surface of the ball caused this drastic reduction in circuit hits when one stops to consider that there was only one homer in three American League games.

There has been no official order announced instructing or allowing anyone in the American League to smudge the surface of the ball.

It may be that the pitchers will have to learn their trade all over again before the results of the mire applications will become fully effective.

WHEAT BRINGS GOOD PRICES IN COUNTY; FARMERS SELLING

Reflecting the recent abnormal trend of the leading markets of the country, the price being paid for the grain in Greene County soared to a new high level of $1.30 for wheat fifty-eight pounds to the bushel at most elevators last Wednesday, but was priced at $1.22 in closing quotations Friday.

It is declared that the increased amount of the crop being loaded onto the market, caused by heavy threshing throughout the country, has not tended to lessen the price.

Farmers appear to be selling the crop as fast as it is threshed, contented to take the price quoted the day it is threshed and not holding for fear of a sudden drop in prices.

Dampness which affected the price the early part of the week has partically disappeared and most of the crop in this country is testing No. 2, in other words about fifty-eight pounds.

The quality of this year's crop, while good, is not as high as last year, elevators report. The yield is averaging from twenty to twenty-five bushels an acre in most fields.

SMALL DAMAGE IS CAUSED BY STORM

A severe rain, wind and electrical storm which broke over Greene County late Thursday afternoon caused no material property damage.

Growing crops are thought to have suffered to a slight extent, particularly in the northern part of the county, where the deluge developed into a hailstorm.

The wind was most severe in the vicinity of Spring Valley, blowing down small trees.

No unusual damage was suffered by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. The rain caused considerable damage in Springfield and Clark County.

ALASKA-BOUND PLANE GOING GOOD

MITCHEL FIELD, L. I., July 19.—Captain Ross G. Hoyt, air pilot who left here yesterday on a round trip flight to Nome, Alaska, is fifteen minutes ahead of his schedule, according to a message received here today from Edmonton, Alberta.

After flying all night from Minneapolis, where he stopped yesterday to refuel, Hoyt arrived at Edmonton, Alberta, today at 6:45 a. m. EST. He deported for White Horse, Yukon, an hour later, a distance of 1,100 miles.

RAIN FALLS AND SO DOES MERCURY

That dull thud you heard Thursday evening was the mercury dropping in the thermometer.

A storm that blew up Thursday afternoon with bits of by-play furnished by thunder, lightning and wind, ended a warm spell that bore all the signs of becoming a nuisance.

As the result of cool winds that followed several hours after the rain, the temperature dropped below par and Xenians shivered into vests and changed their complaints about the weather from "too hot" to "too cold." Friday remained pleasant with warmer weather promised for Saturday.

That proves he is a smart man.

EAST END NEWS

In the midst of sorrow and grief we desire to express our deep appreciation to our relatives, friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of our son and brother, Robert M. Summers. We also wish to thank Rev. Dooley for his consoling words, the choir and Patterson and Shields for the efficient manner in which they conducted the funeral.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ORDERS "DIRTY" BALLS TO CHECK HOME RUN HITTING

NEW YORK, July 19.—The strident ballyhoo for and against the alleged lively baseball evidently has gotten under the collective hides of National League fathers.

John A. Heydler, president of the older circuit, has instructed his umpires to treat all new balls with a nice massage of top soil before they are put in play, tacitly admitting that, perhaps, the ball now used in the major leagues is a bit too easy to hit.

The order went out before yesterday's games and a glance at the scoring records for the four games played in the league yesterday afternoon will reveal that Johnny Frederick, Brooklyn fly snagger, was the only man able to hit the ball far and hard enough to circle the bases.

It was indeed surprising, for there have been few days this year which have failed to see at least a good half dozen balls smacked out of a National League park, or into some distant bleachers for a home run.

Still, one is reluctant to admit that the simple process of rubbing sand on the surface of the ball caused this drastic reduction in circuit hits when one stops to consider that there was only one homer in three American League games.

There has been no official order announced instructing or allowing anyone in the American League to smudge the surface of the ball.

It may be that the pitchers will have to learn their trade all over again before the results of the mire applications will become fully effective.

WHEAT BRINGS GOOD PRICES IN COUNTY; FARMERS SELLING

Reflecting the recent abnormal trend of the leading markets of the country, the price being paid for the grain in Greene County soared to a new high level of $1.30 for wheat fifty-eight pounds to the bushel at most elevators last Wednesday, but was priced at $1.22 in closing quotations Friday.

It is declared that the increased amount of the crop being loaded onto the market, caused by heavy threshing throughout the country, has not tended to lessen the price.

Farmers appear to be selling the crop as fast as it is threshed, contented to take the price quoted the day it is threshed and not holding for fear of a sudden drop in prices.

Dampness which affected the price the early part of the week has partically disappeared and most of the crop in this country is testing No. 2, in other words about fifty-eight pounds.

The quality of this year's crop, while good, is not as high as last year, elevators report. The yield is averaging from twenty to twenty-five bushels an acre in most fields.

SMALL DAMAGE IS CAUSED BY STORM

A severe rain, wind and electrical storm which broke over Greene County late Thursday afternoon caused no material property damage.

Growing crops are thought to have suffered to a slight extent, particularly in the northern part of the county, where the deluge developed into a hailstorm.

The wind was most severe in the vicinity of Spring Valley, blowing down small trees.

No unusual damage was suffered by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. The rain caused considerable damage in Springfield and Clark County.

ALASKA-BOUND PLANE GOING GOOD

MITCHEL FIELD, L. I., July 19.—Captain Ross G. Hoyt, air pilot who left here yesterday on a round trip flight to Nome, Alaska, is fifteen minutes ahead of his schedule, according to a message received here today from Edmonton, Alberta.

After flying all night from Minneapolis, where he stopped yesterday to refuel, Hoyt arrived at Edmonton, Alberta, today at 6:45 a. m. EST. He deported for White Horse, Yukon, an hour later, a distance of 1,100 miles.

RAIN FALLS AND SO DOES MERCURY

That dull thud you heard Thursday evening was the mercury dropping in the thermometer.

A storm that blew up Thursday afternoon with bits of by-play furnished by thunder, lightning and wind, ended a warm spell that bore all the signs of becoming a nuisance.

As the result of cool winds that followed several hours after the rain, the temperature dropped below par and Xenians shivered into vests and changed their complaints about the weather from "too hot" to "too cold." Friday remained pleasant with warmer weather promised for Saturday.

THOMAS MASON NEW OWNER OF AMERICAN RESTAURANT HERE

Thomas I. Mason, proprietor of the Iron Lantern, Detroit and Second Sts., has purchased the American Restaurant, W. Main St., according to an announcement Friday.

The deal was consummated this week with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Morrow, Osborn, who have owned the American several years, and the new owner will take possession Saturday.

Mr. Mason will take over active management of the restaurant, relieving Mr. and Mrs. Grover Mendenhall, who have managed the business since the first of the year for the owners. Mr. Mason has been operating The Iron Lantern for the last four months and this business will be continued. He is announcing no change in policy in the American Restaurant which has been a popular eating place over a period of a number of years.

Mr. Mason's mother, Mrs. Winifred Mason, who has had charge of the kitchen at the Iron Lantern, will also assume charge of the kitchen at the American and Mr. Mason will manage both businesses.

A small rooming house business operated in connection with the American Restaurant on the second floor of the building, will be maintained by the new owner. Mr. and Mrs. Mendenhall are moved to a residence on S. Detroit St.

URBANA CLASSED AS MOTOR SPEED TRAP

Dilver Belden, secretary of the Greene County Auto Club, told Urbana delegates to the auto traffic luncheon in Springfield this week, that Urbana is classed as a speed trap for motorists.

Belden is routing motorists around Urbana, he told the Urbana representatives at the meeting and representatives from other counties said they had also heard complaints. The Springfield Auto Club is diverting traffic around Urbana in routing cars to the north and the Cincinnati Auto Club recently filed a complaint against the fining of its members on traffic charges.

Urbana is one of the cities interested in the effort to divert traffic between Toledo and Cincinnati from the Dixie Highway to the Revolutionary Memorial Trail, which would direct traffic through Urbana, Springfield, Xenia and Lebanon.

TAR SURFACE MAT APPLIED TO ROADS

Motorists are being advised by County Surveyor W. J. Davis that a number of roads in Greene County are being surface treated with thick coats of tar.

Tar has been applied on the road bed of the Wilmington-Xenia Pike from the Greene County line to the Wilmington corporation line and is being covered with crushed rock. This re-surfacing project will be completed in several days.

A tar surface has also been placed on the Dayton-Xenia Pike from Zimmerman west to the Montgomery County line. It is suggested that autoists detour to Dayton by turning to the left at Zimmerman and proceeding to Dayton through Belmont or travel to Dayton by way of Osborn.

The county is applying tar for a distance of four and one-half miles from Jamestown to Ross Twp. High School and from Cedarville southeast on a road leading to the Federal Pike.

VERSATILE PHIL

Radio Entertainer Known For Warming Chill Heart Of London

Phil Cook as seen by Phil Cook.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second article of a series of sketches of the best-known radio personalities of the day. Others are to follow.)

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, July 19.—Phil Cook would have come in right smart handy back in the good old days when a leading man had to suffer for his art through several acts, and sing and dance in between acts when he wasn't shifting scenery or taking tickets and selling crackerjacks and red lemonade.

For Phil is "the most versatile man on the air." No relation to Joe Cook, "the one-man vaudeville show," however.

He writes his own material—also many sketches—plays a ukelele, sings, does black face, old man, buck private, northern, eastern southern or western dances. In fact, he does about everything in the line of entertainment. There are several Broadway shows to his credit, every line of which were written by him. He writes the music and the words.

Phil hails from Coldwater, Mich. He got his big start in London a few years ago at the Coliseum. The Coliseum has a reputation for being a cold, cold place where "getting a hand" is like pulling teeth. Phil Cook was warned of this.

Won Heart of London

And when you consider that all he had to help him was a chair and a ukelele—it doesn't sound very encouraging. But the young Michigan boy shrugged his shoulders, let his sense of humor save him from cold feet, and the management was amazed to see him walk on the stage in a full dress evennig suit with a large woolen Scotch muffler wound around his throat.

When he sang one number and there was no applause Phil shivered and drawled drearily:

"They told me this was a cold place. I bought this muffler—but I see I needed a hot water bag."

The crowd laughed a little. After his next number they laughed a great deal—and, unsmilingly, Phil Cook removed the muffler and laid it on the floor beside his chair. He gave them real American songs in the true American manner and they "fell for it like a ton of bricks." He was a riot in London from that time on. The English had melted to his broad grin and his boyish humor.

An Artist, Too

Yes, he is married. And six feet two inches tall and weighs 185 pounds, and has the nicest wavy light-brown hair and blue eyes, and the hair is just beginning to be becomingly streaked with gray. He is an artist, too. Draws divinely.

Sometimes your artists are people whom it is just as well you can't see. A 200-pound lady playing Juliet, for instance. But Phil Cook has a personality that is lost before the "mike." Television should hurry along just in such cases as this.

We were quite shocked to see the handsome, debonair Mr. Cook chewing gum in the studio, but one of the announcers assured us:

"Oh, that it because he can't smoke in the broadcasting station. Nearly all of the men do it. It isn't a habit."

That was a relief.

EXPECT FIVE WILL TAKE EXAM FRIDAY

At least five applicants are expected to take an examination to be conducted by the civil service commission Friday night for the position of city fireman made vacant by the resignation of William Baumaster, effective July 15.

The examination will be held at 7:30 p. m. in the office of Attorneys W. L. Miller and J. A. Finney in the Allen Bldg.

No provisional appointment was made by City Manager S. O. Hale, who announced that he preferred to await the outcome of the examination and make a permanent appointment from an eligibility list of three to be certified by the commissioono.

Attorney W. L. Miller, T. J. Kennedy and Edward Wood compose the commission.

Washes woolens and blankets!

WHEN you wash with hard water there's a dirty ring around the edge of the basin, but that's not suds. It's scum. The hard water is doing that. It's mixing with the soap to form a dirty curdle. Can't wash woolens and blankets in that water.

Soften the water with Melo. Then add soap. The water is now a very fine cleansing agent and the soap is much more effective. Melo did that. Get a can today at your grocer's.

THOMAS MASON NEW OWNER OF AMERICAN RESTAURANT HERE

Thomas I. Mason, proprietor of the Iron Lantern, Detroit and Second Sts., has purchased the American Restaurant, W. Main St., according to an announcement Friday.

The deal was consummated this week with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Morrow, Osborn, who have owned the American several years, and the new owner will take possession Saturday.

Mr. Mason will take over active management of the restaurant, relieving Mr. and Mrs. Grover Mendenhall, who have managed the business since the first of the year for the owners. Mr. Mason has been operating The Iron Lantern for the last four months and this business will be continued. He is announcing no change in policy in the American Restaurant which has been a popular eating place over a period of a number of years.

Mr. Mason's mother, Mrs. Winifred Mason, who has had charge of the kitchen at the Iron Lantern, will also assume charge of the kitchen at the American and Mr. Mason will manage both businesses.

A small rooming house business operated in connection with the American Restaurant on the second floor of the building, will be maintained by the new owner. Mr. and Mrs. Mendenhall are moved to a residence on S. Detroit St.

URBANA CLASSED AS MOTOR SPEED TRAP

Dilver Belden, secretary of the Greene County Auto Club, told Urbana delegates to the auto traffic luncheon in Springfield this week, that Urbana is classed as a speed trap for motorists.

Belden is routing motorists around Urbana, he told the Urbana representatives at the meeting and representatives from other counties said they had also heard complaints. The Springfield Auto Club is diverting traffic around Urbana in routing cars to the north and the Cincinnati Auto Club recently filed a complaint against the fining of its members on traffic charges.

Urbana is one of the cities interested in the effort to divert traffic between Toledo and Cincinnati from the Dixie Highway to the Revolutionary Memorial Trail, which would direct traffic through Urbana, Springfield, Xenia and Lebanon.

TAR SURFACE MAT APPLIED TO ROADS

Motorists are being advised by County Surveyor W. J. Davis that a number of roads in Greene County are being surface treated with thick coats of tar.

Tar has been applied on the road bed of the Wilmington-Xenia Pike from the Greene County line to the Wilmington corporation line and is being covered with crushed rock. This re-surfacing project will be completed in several days.

A tar surface has also been placed on the Dayton-Xenia Pike from Zimmerman County line. It is suggested that autoists detour to Dayton by turning to the left at Zimmerman and proceeding to Dayton through Belmont or travel to Dayton by way of Osborn.

The county is applying tar for a distance of four and one-half miles from Jamestown to Ross Twp. High School and from Cedarville southeast on a road leading to the Federal Pike.

VERSATILE PHIL

Radio Entertainer Known For Warming Chill -- Heart Of London

Phil Cook as seen by Phil Cook.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second article of a series of sketches of the best-known radio personalities of the day. Others are to follow.)

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, July 19.—Phil Cook would have come in right smart handy back in the good old days when a leading man had to suffer for his art through several acts, and sing and dance in between acts when he wasn't shifting scenery or taking tickets and selling crackerjacks and red lemonade.

For Phil is "the most versatile man on the air." No relation to Joe Cook, "the one-man vaudeville show," however.

He writes his own material—also many sketches—plays a ukelele, sings, does black face, old man, buck private, northern, eastern southern or western dances. In fact, he does about everything in the line of entertainment. There are several Broadway shows to his credit, every line of which were written by him. He writes the music and the words.

Phil hails from Coldwater, Mich. He got his big start in London a few years ago at the Coliseum. The Coliseum has a reputation for being a cold, cold place where "getting a hand" is like pulling teeth. Phil Cook was warned of this.

And when you consider that all he had to help him was a chair and a ukelele—it doesn't sound very encouraging. THE PARABLE OF VACATIONISTS

Now it came to pass as summer drew nigh that Mr. Church Member lifted up his eyes unto the hills and said:

"Lo, the hot days cometh and even now are at hand. Come, let us go into the heights, where cool breezes refresh us and glorious scenes await!"

"Thou speakest wisely," quoth Mrs. Church Member, "Yet three, yea, four things must we do before we go."

"Three things I can think of, but not four," responded Mr. Church Member. 'We must arrange for our flowers to be cared for, our chickens, and the mail forwarded, but the fourth eludes my mind."

"The fourth is like unto the first three, yet more important than all. Thou shalt dig into thy purse and pay the church pledge, that the good name of the church be preserved and that it may be well with thee, for verily I say unto thee, thou hast more money now than thou wilt have when thou dost return."

And it came to pass that Mr. Church Member paid his pledge for the summer and the Treasurer rejoiced greatly, saying, "Of a truth there are those who care for the Lord's work and bethink themselves of the Church's expenses which continue in the summer as in the winter."

And it was so.—Selected.

In a Glasgow church recently a humble Scotch woman told her pastor how much she had been profited by the service of public worship the previous Sunday. Naturally gratified, the minister asked what it was in his sermon that had helped her.

"Oh, naething," she replied, with the usual Scotch frankness, "nothing particular in text or sermon. But it was like when I hang out a line o' clae's; the sun shines on them and they are bleached. I dinna understand the process, but weel I ken the effect. That's the way I felt when comin' oot o' kirk last Sunday."

The best reason for church attendance is its effect on personal life and living so well voiced by this humble Scotch woman worshipper. WHY NOT ACCEPT THE INVITATION AND COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

DUNKEL'S

The purpose of the book of Daniel is to show divine providential guidance by his miraculous interventions, by his knowledge and almighty power, the God of heaven controls and directs the forces of nature and the history of nations, the lives of Hebrew captives and of the mightiest of the kings of earth, for the accomplishment of his divine and beneficent plans for his servant and people.

V. 2. "And the Lord gave Jehoakim, king of Judah, into his hand, with part of the vessels of the house of his god." Nebuchadnezzar had been sent by his father with an army from Babylon to subdue the Assyrian powers; Jehoiakim failed to keep faith with a covenant made with Babylon and now paid the price of that disloyalty; to appease the Babylonian general, the choicest treasures of youth were taken captive.

Vs. 3, 4. "And the king spake unto Ashpenaz, the master of his eunuchs that he should bring in certain of the children of Israel, of the seed royal and of the nobles—that he should teach them." If a government provides for the education of youth, it is more likely to succeed; such education must include foreign-born children. These children had a good start in their home training so that they not only passed a good entrance examination but they would not easily yield to temptation.

V. 20. "And in every matter of wisdom and understanding, concerning which the king enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters that were in all his realm." That young man who is diligent with his books and avoids evil places, companionships and habits will stand the examination test.

Vs. 17, 18. "Then Daniel went to his house and made the thing known to his companions. That they would desire mercies of the God of heaven concerning this secret." The king had had a dream which he had forgotten and he demanded that the graduating class should not only tell him his forgotten dream but its interpretation and failure to do so meant death of all the educated class. It is inferred that these young men of Judah prayed earnestly and long and they were rewarded by the desired knowledge.

Vs. 19, 20. "Then Daniel blessed the God of heaven. Daniel answered and said, blessed be the name of God forever and ever; for wisdom and might are his." Daniel did not wait to have the revealed statement confirmed by the king for he fully trusted God and thanked him before seeing the king.

V. 21. "And he changeth the times and the seasons; he giveth wisdom unto the wise and knowledge to them that have understanding." The wiser one is the readier he is to acknowledge the vast debt to God.

V. 24. "He went and said thus unto the king; destroy not the wise men of Babylon; bring me in before the king and I will show unto the king the interpretation." God gives revelations and messages to those who are faithful to deliver them. God's messages bring life and peace. What the world needs more than anything else is such consecrated leadership as will wait on God until his will is revealed and the forceful presentation of God's will to the governments of the world.

1. What were the fine traits of Daniel's character? How was his character tested?

2 What temptations did Daniel meet? How are Daniel's temptations compared with the temptations of youth today who are away from home?

3. What was the secret of Daniel's advancement? What is the best way for anyone to be promoted?

4. Of what benefit are good associates as taught in this lesson?

5. How proceed to have real wisdom?

Clericus says, "We are the products of the past. The converging lines of parental powers converge in the children. Daniel and his three companions got their start physically and mentally in their native land. Parents' greatest concern should be that of projecting religious motives into their children.

Lesson Prayer, "Grant that we each may feel the need of the highest type of character in order that from us may enter into the lives of others high ideals, pure motives and unfailing courage."

BOOK REVIEW

"Our Economic Morality," by Ward, MacMillan Co. deals with two main issues namely, the effect of our economic morality and the ethics of Jesus upon each other and the effect of such morality upon the future of human society.

"Leaves from the Notebook of a Cynic," by Niebuhr, Clark and Colby is a frank and unique presentation of the experiences of a minister-philosopher in meeting the vital problems of American civilization.

1. SUGGEST WAYS OF GETTING MEMORY WORK DONE IN SUNDAY SCHOOL?

There are several ways of getting memory work done. First it may be accomplished by the project method of teaching; a certain number of hymns and scripture passages may be chosen for the class to study from the historical and interpretative standpoint and then committed to memory; these may be copied in notebooks and illustrated with pictures.

Memory work may be done as home work, the teacher giving each member of the class typewritten or mimeographed copies; opportunities should be given in future class periods for repetition of this assigned task. A certain number of hymns and scripture passages may be selected each year by the leader of the department, the memorization of which will entitle the pupil to honors upon his promotion certificates.

One of the best methods of getting memory work done is to make it a part of the general assembly service not as a part of the worship period necessarily but as a special training service of the school or department. One general superintendent has the following program. The general assembly and drill period, twenty minutes, the worship service fifteen minutes and the lesson period forty minutes. The session is opened with the singing of a hymn followed by the repetition of a scripture passage, both selected from the memory curriculum; then follows the presentation of new memory work. With twenty minutes of time and with the aim largely that of appreciation, a new hymn or scripture passage may be presented each week.

The leader needs to give the background and setting of chosen hymns or scripture so as to arouse interest and give a good understanding of what is to be committed. Good pictures may be used with the memory work to deepen interest and meaning of the memory work.

Ministers and High School teachers of Philadelphia recently met and named Secretary Easton of the local Y. M. C. A. as chairman of a committee to call upon the city superintendent of schools and urge upon him the need of high school students for one hour religious instruction each week during the school year. This hour would be conducted by the ministers, priests and rabbis of the city. This suggestion orignated among the high school teachers of Philadelphia.

BOASTFULNESS

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick in a recent sermon showed how absurd is the boastfulness of many self made men when he said: "When one listens to a certain type of self made man talking about how successfully he has made himself; starting he says with nothing and making this prosperous man whom we now see before us, how can one forbear thinking of all the elements in that man's self made life that he does not make at all?"

"He did not create the universe that has been the theater of his achievement. He did not store the sun with heat or the earth with metals or the prairies with fertility. He did not assist in the evolution of the human race. He had nothing to do with inventing steamships, telegraphs, telephones. He never lifted a finger to build the democracy that gave him his chance, the public school system that gave him his education, the orderly society that left him free for peaceful pursuit or the credit system that has underlain his business. If he loves books, somebody else wrote them. If he loves music, somebody else composed it. If the influence of religion has directly or indirectly brought him any peace or moral strength, that was a free gift from long ages of other people's sacrifice. Life is like a library owned by an author. In it are a few books which he wrote himself but most books were written for him."

DUNKEL'S

The purpose of the book of Daniel is to show divine providential guidance by his miraculous interventions, by his knowledge and almighty power, the God of heaven controls and directs the forces of nature and the history of nations, the lives of Hebrew captives and of the mightiest of the kings of earth, for the accomplishment of his divine and beneficent plans for his servant and people.

V. 2. "And the Lord gave Jehoakim, king of Judah, into his hand, with part of the vessels of the house of his god." Nebuchadthem into the land of Shinar to the house of his god." Nebuchadnezzar had been sent by his father with an army from Babylon to subdue the Assyrian powers; Jehoiakim failed to keep faith with a covenant made with Babylon and now paid the price of that disloyalty; to appease the Babylonian general, the choicest treasures of youth were taken captive.

Vs. 3, 4. "And the king spake unto Ashpenaz, the master of his eunuchs that he should bring in certain of the children of Israel, of the seed royal and of the nobles—that he should teach them." If a government provides for the education of youth, it is more likely to succeed; such education must include foreign-born children. These children had a good start in their home training so that they not only passed a good entrance examination but they would not easily yield to temptation.

V. 20. "And in every matter of wisdom and understanding, concerning which the king enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters that were in all his realm." That young man who is diligent with his books and avoids evil places, companionships and habits will stand the examination test.

Vs. 17, 18. "Then Daniel went to his house and made the thing known to his companions. That they would desire mercies of the God of heaven concerning this secret." The king had had a dream which he had forgotten and he demanded that the graduating class should not only tell him his forgotten dream but its interpretation and failure to do so meant death of all the educated class. It is inferred that these young men of Judah prayed earnestly and long and they were rewarded by the desired knowledge.

Vs. 19, 20. "Then Daniel blessed the God of heaven. Daniel answered and said, blessed be the name of God forever and ever; for wisdom and might are his." Daniel did not wait to have the revealed statement confirmed by the king for he fully trusted God and thinked him before seeing the king.

V. 24. "He went and said thus unto the king; Destroy not the wise men of Babylon; bring me in before the king and I will show unto the king the interpretation." God gives revelations and messages to those who are faithful to deliver them. God's messages bring life and peace. What the world needs more than anything else is such consecrated leaderships as will wait on God until his will is revealed and the forceful presentation of God's will to the governments of the world.

1. What were the fine traits of Daniel's character? How was his character tested?

4. Of what benefit are good associates as taught in this lesson?

5. How proceed to have real wisdom?

Clericus says, "We are the products of the past. The converging lines of parental powers converge in the children. Daniel and his three companions got their start physically and mentally in their native land. Parents' greatest concern should be that of projecting religious motives into their children.

Lesson Prayer, "Grant that we each may feel the need of the highest type of character in order that from us may enter into the lives of others high ideals, pure motives and unfailing courage."

BOOK REVIEW

"Our Economic Morality," by Ward, MacMillan Co. deals with two main issues namely, the effect of our economic morality and the ethics of Jesus upon each other and the effect of such morality upon the future of human society.

"Leaves from the Notebook of a Cynic," by Niebuhr, Clark and Colby is a frank and unique presentation of the experiences of a minister-philosopher in meeting the vital problems of American civilization.

1. SUGGEST WAYS OF GETTING MEMORY WORK DONE IN SUNDAY SCHOOL?

There are several ways of getting memory work done. First it may be accomplished by the project method of teaching; a certain number of hymns and scripture passages may be chosen for the class to study from the historical and interpretative standpoint and then committed to memory; these may be copied in notebooks and illustrated with pictures.

Memory work may be done as home work, the teacher giving each member of the class typewritten or mimeographed copies; opportunities should be given in future class periods for repetition of this assigned task. A certain number of hymns and scripture passages may be selected each year by the leader of the department, the memorization of which will entitle the pupil to honors upon his promotion certificates.

One of the best methods of getting memory work done is to make it a part of the general assembly service not as a part of the worship period necessarily but as a special training service of the school or department. One general superintendent has the following program. The general assembly and drill period, twenty minutes, the worship service fifteen minutes and the lesson period forty minutes. The session is opened with the singing of a hymn followed by the repetition of a scripture passage, both selected from the memory curriculum; then follows the presentation of new memory work. With twenty minutes of time and with the aim largely that of appreciation, a new hymn or scripture passage may be presented each week.

The leader needs to give the background and setting of chosen hymns or scripture so as to arouse interest and give a good understanding of what is to be committed. Good pictures may be used with the memory work to deepen interest and meaning of the memory work.

Ministers and High School teachers of Philadelphia recently met and named Secretary Easton of the local Y. M. C. A. as chairman of a committee to call upon the city superintendent of schools and urge upon him the need of high school students for one hour religious instruction each week during the school year. This hour would be conducted by the ministers, priests and rabbis of the city. This suggestion orignated among the high school teachers of Philadelphia.

BOASTFULNESS

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick in a recent sermon showed how absurd is the boastfulness of many self made men when he said: "When one listens to a certain type of self made man talking about how successfully he has made himself; starting he says with nothing and making this prosperous man whom we now see before us, how can one forbear thinking of all the elements in that man's self made life that he does not make at all?"

"He did not create the universe that has been the theater of his achievement. He did not store the sun with heat or the earth with metals or the prairies with fertility. He did not assist in the evolution of the human race. He had nothing to do with inventing steamships, telegraphs, telephones. He never lifted a finger to build the democracy that gave him his chance, the public school system that gave him his education, the orderly society that left him free for peaceful pursuit or the credit system that has underlain his business. If he loves books, somebody else wrote them. If he loves music, somebody else composed it. If the influence of religion has directly or indirectly brought him any peace or moral strength, that was a free gift from long ages of other people's sacrifice. Life is like a library owned by an author. In it are a few books which he wrote himself but most books were written for him."

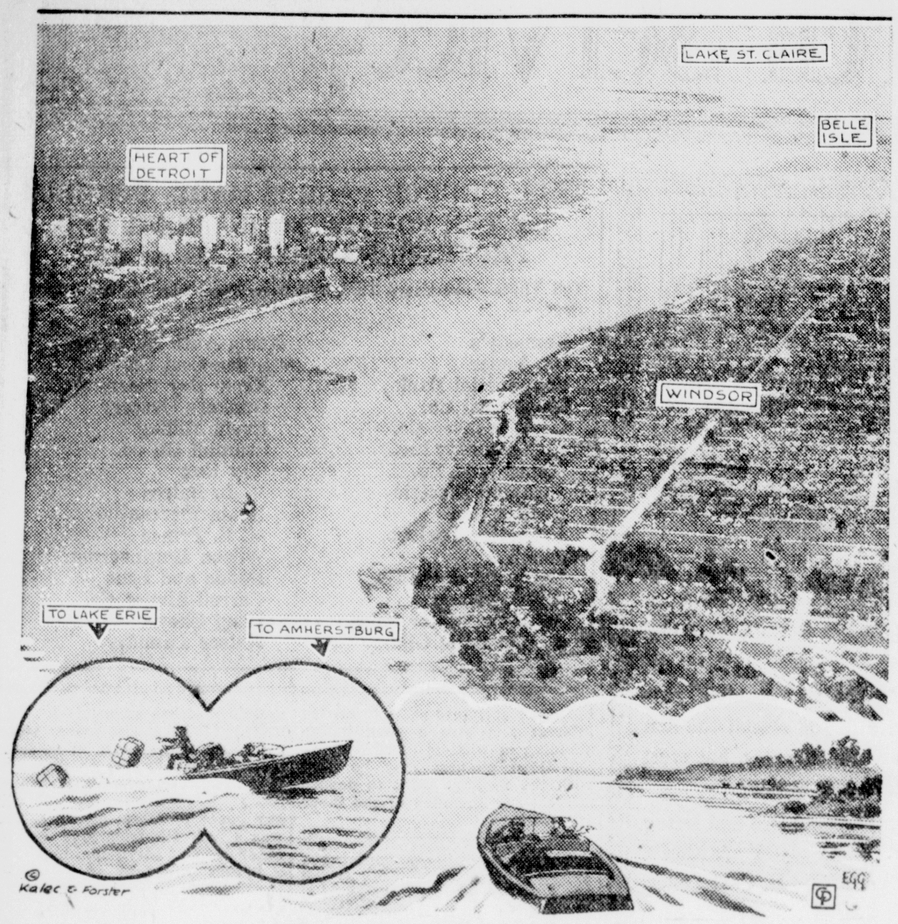
GIRL TELLS THRILLS OF CHASING RUM BOATS



Remarkable air view of the Detroit River.

(Editor's Note: This is the third article of a series on the activities of rum runners in the Detroit River area. Others follow.)

By BONITA WITT
Central Press Staff Writer

DETROIT, Mich., July 19.—Keep a sharp lookout ahead, there!

We're in a border patrol boat pursuing a suspiciously acting craft, speeding out into the open lake toward Toledo, at fifty-five miles an hour.

At times she disappears from view, then again the wake which she cuts at such a terrific speed betrays her.

Ever so slowly we begin to overtake her.

Suddenly three more streaks of foam appear on the horizon. We've apparently uncovered a nest of rum runners laying to some eight miles out from the mouth of the Detroit River, awaiting the boat which we have been pursuing.

Evidently they haven't sighted us for they still keep to their course.

"Look, chief," the excited mechanic yells, "they're cutting back toward Canadian waters!"

"Train your glasses on them," the pilot orders, "see if you can see them dumping their load."

Guess I wasn't meant for a dry sleuth—what with the glare of sunlight and the rapid bobbing up and down of the boat I couldn't focus the glasses long enough in one spot to even sight the fleeing boats. However, the patrol man soon "picked them up" with his naked eyes by the tell-tale side splash as case after case, wrapped in burlap, hit the water.

Close enough to make out the figures in the boats, we see one speedster turn abruptly again toward American waters. "Must be a decoy," the pilot explains, "we'll chase the other three.

Feverishly the men dump cases of beer, Scotch, gin and bourbon, in a frantic effort to lighten their loads and beat us to the safety of Canadian waters.

Turning to look at the fourth boat we see that he, too, has doubled back to Canadian waters and is dumping his cargo, but it is too late to chase him.

A Challenge Unheeded

As we pull past his graceful, high-powered craft our pilot brandishes his revolver and dares the rum runner to come back to U. S. waters, he laughs at us and in answer extracts a bottle of whisky from his load and downs a few lusty gulps.

Although he has dumped a good many cases his boat still is far from empty. His three companions are making for the Canadian shore.

After circling them a few times we start back to our base. "We could lay out here all day and they wouldn't make a move," our skipper explains. "This isn't my territory—it's coast guard because they are equipped for lake work."

As we make our way homeward we notice one of the rum runners following us.

"He'll follow us to see where we go and then report to his companions that the coast is clear."

By the time we reach our base, up the river, four cargoes of Canada's best probably will be half way to Toledo.

The Export Docks

Now let's cruise past Amherstburg where the major liquor exporting is occurring at this time. It is nearly time for the docks to close but there is little activity. Some thirty boats are lying at the docks empty. A few men are loafing about the warehouses. A search with the glasses reveals but one boat loaded, ready to attempt to run the blockade.

"Guess that's proof, isn't it, that we're drying up the river?" my pilot inquires.

From Amherstburg we round Bob Lo, the island which hides the docks from the American shore, and head straight for U. S. waters, to see if any of the other border patrol boats will chase us. Sure enough, there comes one tearing upstream. As soon as they see who we are they salute and return to their post. From then on until we come to our base we see, every so many hundred feet, a border patrol boat lying in wait for a suspicious movement in Canadian waters.

The Big Fellows

Two coast guard cutters, with guns mounted on their decks, pass us on their way to Lake Erie—just too late to capture the four boats which we had overtaken.

As we go ashore the officer who had been our pilot remarks, "There, young lady, I guess that ought to convince you that there isn't very much stuff coming across the river. I don't say that some isn't getting in, but in our territory that amount has been reduced to a minimum."

And Pooch, the dog which was found on a load of liquor and has completely transferred her allegiance to the dry corps, wags her mongrel tail as if to say "Can't you see, we always get our man?"

AUTO BRAKE TEST PLANNED FOR NEXT WEEK ON E. MARKET ST.

Every motorist in Xenia and the immediate surrounding territory will be afforded an opportunity to have his automobile inspected thoroughly free of charge during the five-day period from Tuesday, July 23 to Saturday, July 27, inclusive, set aside for a brake testing and car inspection campaign.

The inspection drive is to be held under auspices of the Greene County Auto Club, Xenia merchants, the Xenia Police Department and sheriff's office.

A space has been reserved on E. Market St., between Whiteman and Collier Sts., where autoists may avail themselves of the privilege of having their cars examined.

Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, have been placed in charge of the project, it is announced, and drivers may make special appointments with these officers.

An officer will be in charge of the inspection station each day of the campaign between 9:30 and 11 a. m. and from 4 to 8 p. m.

Cars will be subjected to an inspection to determine whether the brakes are faulty and if the lighting apparatus is operating properly.

Receipts will be given the drivers of cars which successfully pass all tests indicating this fact.

It is particularly appropriate that the car inspection should be made at this time in order that drivers may learn whether their machines are in first class condition for summer trips, according to Dilver Belden, auto club secretary.

ROBBINS AND MYERS EMPLOYS STAFF TO REOPEN XENIA PLANT

With the installation of new equipment and machinery this week, the Robbins and Myers, Inc., Springfield, has completed preparations for the re-opening of its Xenia plant, located on Home Ave., next Monday morning, it is announced.

A. C. Chase, Springfield, associated with the company for the last fifteen years, has been selected as superintendent of the Xenia plant, it is announced and a Xenia woman will be employed as forewoman.

From the more than 100 girls who applied at the local plant, seeking employment Thursday night in answer to the company's appeal for experienced workers, twenty-five were successful in obtaining positions and will report for work Monday.

Eventually with the gradual increase of production, it is expected that employment will be furnished nearly 200 persons, both men and women.

Motors and fans of all kinds will be manufactured at the Xenia plant.

Decision to re-open the Xenia plant, which has stood idle since 1921, was reached because the Springfield plant is being operated at full capacity and is 50,000 orders behind its schedule, it was disclosed Friday.

ENDURANCE FLIGHT PLANE STILL ALOFT

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 19.—The St. Louis-Robin, a monoplane that went aloft here at 7:17 a. m. last Saturday, was still in the air today and reported everything "OK."

The pilots, Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brine, hope to break the 246 hour refueling endurance record. They have been in the air more than 140 hours.

The Missouri-Robin, a sister ship piloted by Joseph Hammer and W. Gentry Shelton, has been in the air more than forty-one consecutive hours.

In Gastonia Trial

Special Superior Court Judge Hoyle Sink will preside at the trial in Gastonia, N. C., of 15 alleged Loray mill strikers charged with murder in connection with the death of Police Chief Oscar F. Aderholt of Gastonia. The trial will begin July 29 at a special term of court.

SPEED ANTE WILL BE RAISED SUNDAY

Erection of signs along Ohio highways indicating the fact that under the Boden state law, which goes into effect Sunday, July 21, motorists will be permitted to travel at a maximum rate of forty-five miles an hoour, has already been begun by the state highway department.

The new state law raises the maximum speed limit ten miles an hour from thirty-five to forty-five.

BANDITS GET CASH

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 19—Six bandits held up a bank truck here today, expelled its guard and driver and drove away in it with $21,000 cash and securities of the Hibernia Bank and Trust Company.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING

LONDON, O., July 19—Pearl Henson, 12, was killed by lightning near here late yesterday after he took refuge from a storm underneath the eaves of a barn. The bolt struck fifty feet from where the boy was standing. The Henson family recently moved here from Springfield.

Smalltowners' Artistic Sense Stronger, Is Claimed

Congresswoman Sees Art Progressing Faster in Country

MRS. RUTH HANNA McCORMICK
(International Newsreel)

TO THE small towns and villages of the United States must be given the credit for developing more sculptors, artists, opera singers and writers than the big cities. Main Street is the source of the impetus of the American people, according to Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, member of the House from Illinois.

The "hick towns" are the big cities, in the opinion of Mrs. McCormick, who lives near Byron, Ill., a farming community of 800 people. "They have their art galleries and their museums, but only because some wealthy benefactor provides them," she said. "In the smaller towns there is a much more genuine and general artistic development. The day is over when the concert road company or road show from the big city, no matter how low-brow its program, could invade and capture the small town. People resent poor caliber programs, and immediately ask: 'What is New York trying to put over on us?'"

Going to more common things, the small town is showing its civic pride in their hot-dog stands, gasoline stations and soft drink emporiums. No more are these roadside appurtenances eyesores. There is a real movement on foot to make them as beautiful and attractive as possible.

Other evidence of America's new artistic interest is brought out by the increased use of colors. Automobiles, formerly so somber, are not considered smart now unless painted in attractive shades. Color is insisted on everywhere, even on articles which only a few years ago were neglected — alarm clocks, toothbrushes, table glassware, towels and linen. Just step into the modern farm kitchen. It is unusual to find it somber or plain as formerly. No, sir, bright blues or greens with utensils to match even to the dishpan and kettles.

"We are awakening to the realization that art need not be a pretty amusing superficiality," says Mrs. McCormick, "but that it can be a part of our religion, contributing to the advancement and welfare of our lives."

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

MAKING PORT

The bay which forms the entrance to the Spanish town of Vigo is one of the most beautiful in the world. Blankets of fog lift and settle again as we feel our way slowly up the great bay. We spend nearly a day and a night entering. A ship of this line recently cut down a freighter lying at anchor in the fog in New York Harbor, and a terrible time followed, with loss to the line. I suspect our captain is, as a result, a bit overcautious. The passengers grumble at the loss of a day, while we lie fog-bound. But the bay is full of rocks and shoals, and I, for one, would rather lose the day than my skin.

The waters hereabouts are reeking with history. Just as we wait now for the fog to clear, so waited the Golden Hind, while Francis Drake (not yet Sir Francis) paced her deck, waiting for the fog to lift. He had just returned from his buccaneering voyage around the world, and his hold was full of Spanish gold that he had taken in the waters of the new world. As Spain and England were at peace, Drake wasn't looking for a Spanish harbor in which to display his loot. He had missed his way. He stayed but briefly at Vigo, and headed away for Plymouth.

* * *

Just as we wait, here where we lie at anchor, there waited for three days and nights, in 1702, a fleet of English and Dutch war vessels. Within the harbor of Vigo lay the Spanish plate fleet that had recently come in from the Americas with a rich harvest of gold and silver.

The Spaniards knew the enemy was without, but delayed unloading the treasure. When the fog lifted, the enemy sailed in. The plate fleet still lies at the bottom of the bay, and on a clear day you can see the silt-covered masts and hulks that have baffled so many industrious divers since those faraway days of romance and wars between jealous kings.

* * *

These policemen use their open hands, instead of clubs, to manage the crowds, and they are quite effective. In the course of half an hour they force the main body of the crowd back half a block, and hold it there. Some privileged hundreds line the pier at the water's edge.

These policemen wear blue uniforms with brass buttons, scarlet collars, scarlet cuffs, broad white belts and resplendent helmets with a coat of arms. Some carry short, light clubs which they keep hooked to their belts. Others, who probably are sergeants and captains, carry smart little swagger sticks with curved handles. All wear chinstraps. The yare very polite, especially to foreigners.

Soldiers in khaki, some smoking and some holding newspapers in their hands, stand about the docks. They wear caps like tams. The customs officers are grand in olive green uniforms and lordly black capes that reach almost to their shoe-tops.

A collie has hurt its foot, and is crying. Soldiers, health officers, policemen and civilians forget the incoming ship while they attend to the wounded dog, dressing his foot tenderly and committing him to his master with a new leash. The dog barks his thanks. He likes these Spaniards. So do I.

KONJOLA BRINGS GLAD END TO 10 YEARS OF PAIN

Not Until She Gave Konjola A Chance Did Happy Lady Find Long Sought Relief

"I was weak and rundown, my general health was shattered as the result of indigestion, liver trouble and nervousness," said

MRS. RUTH HOUSE

Mrs. Ruth House, 1039 Rittenhouse Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. "I endured these painful and health destroying ailments for ten years, and not a medicine or a treatment did me the least bit of good."

"It was Konjola that swept the poisons from my system. Now I can eat anything I like. My complexion is clear, and I am taking on weight and strength. It is easy for me to understand why Konjola is known as the medicine with more than a million friends—it has a real friend in me, because it brought an end to my ten years of pain and suffering."

folks used to be fond of tinkering now they prefer to ride

Gone are the days when half the fun of owning a car was fussing with its ailments; and half the pride of ownership was the ability to make it run.

Owners no longer boast about their prowess with piston rings and pump gaskets. The car that spends most time on the road and least in the service station is the car they want. That car is De Soto Six.

The motoring public, in less than a year, has found it a fact that the Chrysler-built De Soto Six stands up exceptionally—that its capacity for continuous road duty is greater than that of any other six below $1,000.

AUTO BRAKE TEST PLANNED FOR NEXT WEEK ON E. MARKET ST.

Every motorist in Xenia and the immediate surrounding territory will be afforded an opportunity to have his automobile inspected thoroughly free of charge during the five-day period from Tuesday, July 23 to Saturday, July 27, inclusive, set aside for a brake testing and car inspection campaign.

The inspection drive is to be held under auspices of the Greene County Auto Club, Xenia merchants, the Xenia Police Department and sheriff's office.

A space has been reserved on E. Market St., between Whiteman and Collier Sts., where autoists may avail themselves of the privilege of having their cars examined.

Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, have been placed in charge of the project, it is announced, and drivers may make special appointments with these officers.

An officer will be in charge of the inspection station each day of the campaign between 9:30 and 11 a. m. and from 4 to 8 p. m.

Cars will be subjected to an inspection to determine whether the brakes are faulty and if the lighting apparatus is operating properly.

Receipts will be given the drivers of cars which successfully pass all tests indicating this fact.

It is particularly appropriate that the car inspection should be made at this time in order that drivers may learn whether their machines are in first class condition for summer trips, according to Dilver Belden, auto club secretary.

WHY DO folks drive 60 miles to visit the gardens of Chas. Wing at Mechanicsburg? Because 1,500 varieties give them such a large assortment to choose from, and also because Mr. Wing's method of transplanting makes almost every plant grow. All are hardy, perennial, low in price.

Hardy Phlox is splendid now. There are many varieties. So, also, are the Eryngiums, Delphiniums, Asclepias, Lythrum, Polemonium, Perennial Campanules, Violas, Lychnis, and some rare Potentillas, Hybrid Tea Roses are fine. On Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Sat. of this week there will be special prices on Campanula grandiflora and Pentstemon barbatus.

BUDGETS FROM TWO VILLAGES STILL OUT

If Bowersville and Osborn villages expect to comply with the law they must file their 1930 budgets with the County Budget Commission not later than Saturday, the deadline date.

This announcement was made Friday by County Auditor P. H. Creswell, who disclosed that the budgets of these two villages are the only ones missing.

Next year's budgets of thirty-six of the thirty-eight taxing districts of Greene County, including all of the townships and school districts, have already been submitted to Auditor Creswell for consideration by the budget commission.

RACING MEET OPENS IN GEAUGA COUNTY

CLEVELAND, O., July 19.— A twenty-five day racing meet will open today at Bainbridge Park track, Geauga County. The new race meet was unexpectedly announced last night closely following a week of fireworks in connection with the opening of the track at Thistledown.

Many of the horses which will compete in the Bainbridge meet are from Thistledown. The meet is tacitly understood to be an accommodation for horsemen who were left "holding the sack" when Sheriff E. J. Hurratty forbade racing at Thistledown and deputized a small army of special officers to enforce his orders.

Betting will continue at Bainbridge as it is understood Geauga County officials find nothing illegal in the "contribution" system of betting.

UNION SERVICES IN SHAWNEE PARK ARE BEING SCHEDULED

A schedule for union services every Sunday evening in the pavilion of Shawnee Park, is being announced by the Xenia Ministerial Association.

The first union service in the park was held last Sunday evening, when the largest attendance of the summer took advantage of the meetings. The schedule of services follows:

July 21.—Rev. Adrian Lebold, First Lutheran Church.
July 28.—Rev. W. N. Shank, First M. E. Church.
August 4.—Rev. J. R. Lunsford, First Baptist Church.
August 11.—Rev. H. B. McElree, Second U. P. Church.
August 18.—Rev. W. W. Foust, First Reformed Church.
August 25.—Rev. Russell Burkett, Friends Church.
September 1.—Rev. S. L. Brill, United Brethren Church.
September 8.—Rev. W. H. Tilford, First Presbyterian Church.
September 15.—Rev. J. P. Lytle, First U. P. Church.

Special music at each service will be provided by the church whose pastor preaches the sermon. The Rev. L. A. Washburn, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, preached at the first park service last Sunday evening and Trinity choir furnished the music.

DEATH CLAIMS MISS NAOMI SHELLHASS

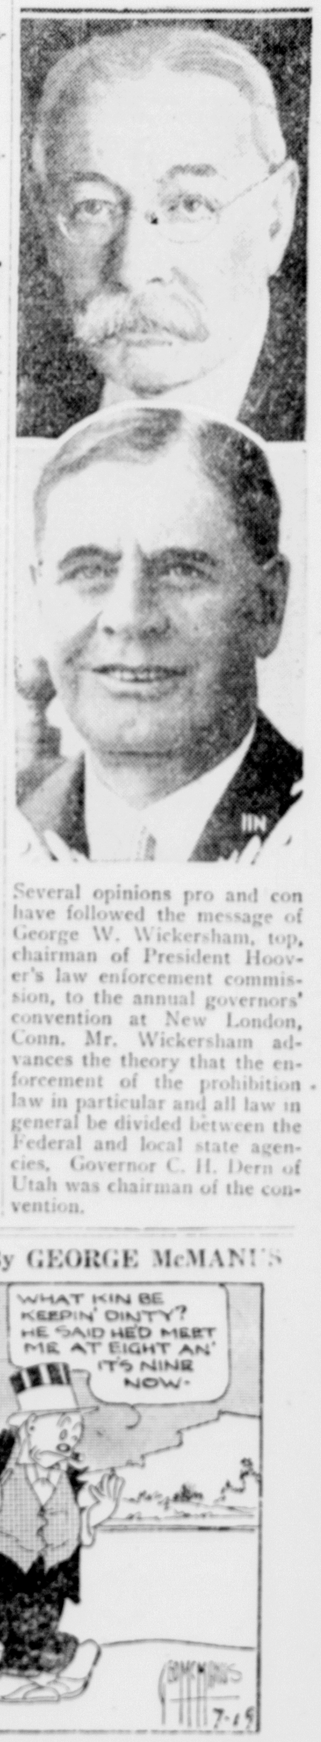
Miss Naomi Shellhass, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Shellhass, Ludlow Falls, died at her home Wednesday morning as the result of complications. She had been ill since last December.

Shellhass was a teacher in the public schools at Pleasant Hill and was serving her second year when she became ill.

She is survived by her parents and a number of relatives in and near Xenia.

Funeral services will be held at the Friends Church Saturday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock with burial in Troy.

Unfolds His Plan



Several opinions pro and con have followed the message of George W. Wickersham, top, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission, to the annual governors' convention at New London, Conn. Mr. Wickersham advances the theory that the enforcement of the prohibition law in particular and all law in general be divided between the Federal and local state agencies. Governor C. H. Dern of Utah was chairman of the convention.

WHY DO folks drive 60 miles to visit the gardens of Chas. Wing at Mechanicsburg? Because 1,500 varieties give them such a large assortment to choose from, and also because Mr. Wing's method of transplanting makes almost every plant grow. All are hardy, perennial, low in price.

Hardy Phlox is splendid now. There are many varieties. So, also, are the Eryngiums, Delphiniums, Asclepias, Lythrum, Polemonium, Perennial Campanules, Violas, Lychnis, and some rare Potentillas. Hybrid Tea Roses are fine. On Wed., Thurs., Fri., and Sat. of this week there will be special prices on Campanula grandiflora and Pentstemon barbatus.

BUDGETS FROM TWO VILLAGES STILL OUT

If Bowersville and Osborn villages expect to comply with the law they must file their 1930 budgets with the County Budget Commission not later than Saturday, the deadline date.

This announcement was made Friday by County Auditor P. H. Creswell, who disclosed that the budgets of these two villages are the only ones missing.

Next year's budgets of thirty-six of the thirty-eight taxing districts of Greene County, including all of the townships and school districts, have already been submitted to Auditor Creswell for consideration by the budget commission.

RACING MEET OPENS IN GEAUGA COUNTY

CLEVELAND, O., July 19.— A twenty-five day racing meet will open today at Bainbridge Park track, Geauga County. The new race meet was unexpectedly announced last night closely following a week of fireworks in connection with the opening of the track at Thistledown.

Many of the horses which will compete in the Bainbridge meet are from Thistledown. The meet is tacitly understood to be an accommodation for horsemen who were left "holding the sack" when Sheriff E. J. Hanratty forbade racing at Thistledown and deputized a small army of special officers to enforce his orders.

Betting will continue at Bainbridge as it is understood Geauga County officials find nothing illegal in the "contribution" system of betting.

UNION SERVICES IN SHAWNEE PARK ARE BEING SCHEDULED

A schedule for union services every Sunday evening in the pavilion of Shawnee Park, is being announced by the Xenia Ministerial Association.

The first union service in the park was held last Sunday evening, when the largest attendance of the summer took advantage of the meetings. The schedule of services follows:

July 21.—Rev. Adrian Lebold, First Lutheran Church.
July 28.—Rev. W. N. Shank, First M. E. Church.
August 4.—Rev. J. R. Lunsford, First Baptist Church.
August 11.—Rev. H. B. McElree, Second U. P. Church.
August 18.—Rev. W. W. Foust, First Reformed Church.
August 25.—Rev. Russell Burkett, Friends Church.
September 1.—Rev. S. L. Brill, United Brethren Church.
September 8.—Rev. W. H. Tilford, First Presbyterian Church.
September 15.—Rev. J. P. Lytle, First U. P. Church.

Special music at each service will be provided by the church whose pastor preaches the sermon. The Rev. L. A. Washburn, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, preached at the first park service last Sunday evening and Trinity choir furnished the music.

DEATH CLAIMS MISS NAOMI SHELLHASS

Miss Naomi Shellhass, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Shellhass, Ludlow Falls, died at her home Wednesday morning as the result of complications. She had been ill since last December.

Shellhass was a teacher in the public schools at Pleasant Hill and was serving her second year when she became ill.

She is survived by her parents and a number of relatives in and near Xenia.

Funeral services will be held at the Friends Church Saturday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock with burial in Troy.

BRINGING UP FATHER — By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

Innovations which may revolutionize the talking film industry are being urged upon British producers to bring to an end American supremacy in film production.

The British are giving serious consideration to third dimension pictures, such as were presented as novelties here recently but never brought to perfection.

R. E. Jeffrey, sound production expert of a large British producing company says: "Within the next few years I am convinced we shall see the arrival of the plastic figure—the film that will give depth as well as height and breadth. Many experts have been working for some time to achieve perfection in this invention and I would not be surprised if it were attained in the next two years.

"In America inventors are doing their utmost to achieve successful results in this type of film, and I am afraid that it may burst upon just when we in this country have brought the talking picture to a fairly high pitch of perfection. It is therefore up to British inventors to get there first."

* * *

Jeffrey believes color will be a natural part of film development. In his opinion, persons who have been successful radio artists will make the best "talkie" actors, providing they "screen" well. Stanley Rowson, a member of the British board of trade film committee, said audiences may soon expect "smellies".

"When the irate husband in the picture scornfully asks his submissive wife whether she describes that as a fresh kipper, the odor of a kipper of obvious senility will flow through the theater." He is not entirely optimistic about the future of the British film, however.

"Experience does not justify the conclusion", he says. "That the British film will have an unexpected vogue because the British actor is more polished than his American confrere. American companies will always be able to buy the best actors.

"But time will come when American companies will discover that England is the only important foreign market for which a revenue can be expected, and it is reasonable to expect that a real co-operative film alliance, which has hitherto been rejected, will come about."

New Yorkers who have considerable time to spend at the Pennsylvania station waiting for friends can thank the railroad for installing a movie peep show on the lower level. The patron sits on a bench, applies his eyes to the slot, drops a nickel and is entertained with an old Chaplin film, a view of ladies on the meach at Lido, a travelogue, or what have you. There are twenty booths and twenty subjects. Each film runs five minutes, making an hour and forty minute train wait painless.

The Theater

Innovations which may revolutionize the talking film industry are being urged upon British producers to bring to an end American supremacy in film production.

The British are giving serious consideration to third dimension pictures, such as were presented as novelties here recently but never brought to perfection.

R. E. Jeffrey, sound production expert of a large British producing company says: "Within the next few years I am convinced we shall see the arrival of the plastic figure—the film that will give depth as well as height and breadth. Many experts have been working for some time to achieve perfection in this invention and I would not be surprised if it were attained in the next two years.

"In America inventors are doing their utmost to achieve successful results in this type of film, and I am afraid that it may burst upon just when we in this country have brought the talking picture to a fairly high pitch of perfection. It is therefore up to British inventors to get there first."

* * *

Jeffrey believes color will be a natural part of film development. In his opinion, persons who have been successful radio artists will make the best "talkie" actors, providing they "screen" well. Stanley Rowson, a member of the British board of trade film committee, said audiences may soon expect "smellies".

THE FLAT TIRE

A DRAB LITTLE MOTH FLIES TO HAPPINESS

By Alma Sioux Scarberry, Author of "Make Up" Etc.

© 1929 Central Press Assn Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

Vivian Matthews, shy and unhappy because she was a doorstep baby, is called a "flat tire" by the younger set of Bender. She marries Kentworth Hillman Johns III, with the understanding that in a year she will get one hundred thousand dollars and a divorce in Paris. She loves him secretly, and marries to help him get the fortune left by his grandfather. Aurelia "Dovie" Jansen, who jilted Kent to marry the Count Von Popper in Paris, returns and lays her plans to win Kent again. There is a cyclone, and when both homes are taken and Vivian's maid is wounded, Vivian flies through the storm for doctors and becomes a heroine, saving a score of lives. The refugees are in the little Matthews cottage, willed to Vivian by her old guardian.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

* * *

CHAPTER XXXIX

Red Cross headquarters was established at the Matthews cottage. It hummed with activity.

Doctors, nurses—boy scouts, running in and out, carrying messages and doing their little brown uniforms proud.

Death had laid a heavy hand on the town. At noon, the day after the cyclone, the total was nine dead and twenty-three injured. The Smith family, a father, mother and three children, were all taken. Three men and a woman who had been on the street when the storm broke had been buried under the debris.

Celeste, delirious and in grave danger, was taken at once in an ambulance to the Salina hospital. Cots were placed in Vivian's living room for five homeless who were not hurt enough to be taken to a hospital.

All the news wires in the country had picked up the story of the girl ace who had flown in the face of death and saved the lives of a score by bringing aid before it was too late. In the day's news she was the heroine of the hour.

When it became known that she was the girl whose picture had won the international art prize, New York papers carried it in their headlines. With the Countess Von Popper, and Mann Barkow, the famous artist, under the same roof, all refugees from the storm, the little cottage took on great importance in the press dispatches.

Cuddles and Bark assumed the kitchen responsibilities—cooking and washing dishes almost day and night. Bark, with an apron tied under his arms, and Cuddles in checked gingham bossing him sassily, fed dozens of homeless that filled the back yard in an almost continuous stream.

Kent and Vivian took charge of the rest of the house and helped care for the injured. It all seemed a nightmare to Vivian. But it brought her so much closer to Kent that, heartbreaking as the tragedy seemed, there were moments when she felt a new happiness.

Dovie and Mrs. Jansen kept to their room the first day. Kent grew more furious with the mother every minute. He did not blame Dovie. She was just a poor, misguided kid!

When it dawned upon Mrs. Jansen suddenly that there would be several thousand dollars insurance to collect very soon, she saw a way of getting out of all the mess and away from what she chose to call "Vivian's Dump." They could safely go to Paris. The insurance money would take care of them until Kent and Dovie were married.

Dovie was overjoyed. She stopped Kent as he went by the door, and pulled him into the room.

"Is my poor 'ittle sweetums tired boy?"

The sympathy and her nearness overcame him—as usual. He took her into his arms tenderly. Her big, blue eyes looked at him pleadingly.

"Will the loss mean an awful lot to you, darling. I mean—you have plenty of money—plenty to—to—go into business again with, haven't you?"

"Oh, yes," he assured her, promptly. "I've lost a lot. But I'll survive."

She hardly knew how to tell him she was going back to Paris right away. But she did—and he looked properly sorry. She clung to him tightly.

"When you get all this mess off your shoulders—I mean when you tell Vivian you want to be free—I'll come right straight back to you—and we'll be married."

He would have liked to say something about having a definite understanding that Mamma Jansen would be among the missing forever after. But he stifled the impulse. He knew that if Dovie got away from her selfish, complaining mother she would be her angel self!

Kent kissed Dovie affectionately and told her there would be a way out of it soon. Vivian saw him leaving the room. She had seen Dovie pull him in, too. And she felt sick at heart. Even after the heartless, selfish, way Dovie had shown her true self in the face of all the disaster and trouble, she could still pull him back to her. It's love—Vivian assured herself, brokenly. It can't be anything else.

Vivian was in Martha Matthews' old room, lying across the bed, when Kent found her a little later, getting a much needed rest. He went to her ruefully, like a little boy might to his mother, with a rent in his trouser leg.

"My Lord, Viv," he exhibited the tear, "my only pair of trousers, and I have a rip in them."

She got up and went to the dresser drawer for needle and thread. "Sit here," she indicated a chair at the window, "and I'll fix 'em for you."

It was the first little intimate service she had ever done for him. Her heart beat quickly, and her fingers moved clumsily as she sewed. "I'm a fool to feel like this," she tried to still the beating of her heart.

She knelt on the floor beside him, sewing, and he looked at the red head bowed over the needle, tenderly. What a little brick she was! When she finished he lifted her to her feet and stood with his strong, brown hands on her arms.

"You're the salt of the earth, old thing," he smiled into her tired, circled eyes. And when she dropped her head he said softly: "What a lucky fellow the man you love some day, will be?"

When she turned and threw herself across the bed he thuoght it was because she was tired—and went out. But the door had no more than closed behind him when she broke into sobs.

But there was no time to weep over her own misfortunes. A little later she dried her eyes, guiltily, and went over to the mirror to powder her nose. She looked at herself, with her uncurled hair and the "blue rag" of a house dress that Cuddles had one time told her clashed so miserably with her eyes, and smiled crookedly.

All her pretty clothes were gone. The cyclone had taken everything she owned. Except, she thanked fortune, the jade necklace, ring and the bracelet Kent had given her—and her wedding and diamond rings. She had, providentially, had them on when she went to the cave on the tragic night.

She looked very much like Vivian Matthews, homely as ever, she decided. And poor Celeste. Would the little maid ever dress her hair again and put lovely things on her, and tell her she was "so wonderfrail vamps?" She choked at the thought of Celeste lying in the hospital, and marveled at a devotion so great that she had risked her own life to bring her back out of the storm to safety.

That Vivian had paid it back in full by her exciting ride through the stormy night did not enter her mind. All the fuss over her flight embarrassed her. What else could she have done? Any one would have done the same if they could. That was her reaction every time it was mentioned to her.

Dovie and mamma left the next day. A week later temporary shelters had been erected, and life in Bender was moving on almost normally. Pat and Mann had been released from kitchen duty, and the injured, all except Celeste, were well on the road to recovery.

It was on the day that Kent and Vivian found themselves alone in the little cottage for the first time that to Kent Johns came the most staggering blow of his life. It was an even greater shock than he had the day he learned the girl he was to marry had married another man.

His world fell around him like a little boy's block house.

The August meeting of the club will be at the home of Miss Lida Ferguson.

Mrs. Mollie Zimmerman, Mrs. Nettie Moler, Russell Zimmerman and Mrs. George Ferguson attended the funeral of Mrs. Walfe at Byron Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Coy entertained at a family dinner Sunday July 14 at which all of their children and grandchildren were present as follows:

Mrs. Nettie Moler accompanied her brother-in-law, and sister and family on a trip to Gull Lake in Michigan where they rented a cottage for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Ferguson and daughter Shirley Louise, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Coy and children, Donald and Charlotte; Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Coy, and son, Kenneth.

Dick Scharrer is spending two or three weeks at the home of his aunt, Mrs. H. A. Shank and Mr. Shank while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Scharrer are enjoying a trip to Canada.

On account of the funeral of Mr. Manuel Trubee, a former resident of Beavercreek Twp., Sunday afternoon at Mt. Zion, there was no afternoon service at the church here, as part of the homecoming program.

Mr. Trubee is survived by his son Joe, and a daughter, Mrs. Jordan, of Dayton. A number of children died in childhood, while the family lived on Mr. Aaron Coy's farm.

Mr. and Mrs. McKinley Durnbaugh have purchased a new piano.

JONES SAYS:

"I read about a girl in England who lost 2000 pounds in one day. One American said it was a lie. No girl could lose that amount of weight in one day, and live."

How do they ever keep 1200 rooms clean?

TAKES an army of cleaners, of course. But in the great hotels they're properly equipped to do the job quickly, thoroughly and safely. They use Wyandot—because it can't scratch the finest paint and enamel, because it preserves and freshens the finish, and because it provides complete cleanliness and sanitation. Comparative tests prove the superiority of Wyandot. Great institutions have used nothing else for years.

Now you can get Wyandot for your own home. Use it on your painted woodwork, porcelain, washbowls and bathtubs. It will amaze you with its quickness and thoroughness. It will save many repainting bills. At your grocer's. Big package only 15c.
